New Orleans fire

Burglar bars trap many of 29 victims

By ERIC NEWHOUSE

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Most of the 29 persons killed when fire flashed through a second-story cocktail lounge in the French Quarter here were trapped by burglar bars on three front windows, authorities said today.

Fifteen others were injured in the fire at The Upstairs Lounge, which was packed for the weekly Sunday night beer bust featuring all you could eat and drink for $2.

A survivor said he believed somebody dashed an inflammable liquid on the stairway to the lounge and lit it.

Fire Supt. William McCrossen said homicide investigators and the state fire marshal would take a careful look at reports that "some people smelled gasoline just before the fire."

However, he cautioned, such reports were unconfirmed.

Some small persons managed to escape by squeezing through the burglar bars on the lounge's front windows and then leaping to the street. Others left the building by smashing a side window and climbing onto a fire escape. A few made their way to another fire escape in the rear.

The bodies of those who did not make it lay jammed like logs against the front windows, with four huddled under a charred grand piano.

Some of the injured apparently were hurt in jumping to the street.

Authorities said there was only one woman among the dead.

Fire headquarters is but three blocks away. Units were on the scene in two minutes, said Supt. William McCrossen. The fire was out 15 minutes later.

Adolph Medina, 32, of San Antonio, Tex., said flames engulfed the bar in a short, panicked moment after fire broke out on the front stairway.

He said, "I was panicked about jumping, but two guys urged me to jump and I was small enough... Some big guy on the ground caught me, and I kept looking back but my friend never got out."

Linn Quinton, 25, of Houston, Tex., said, "The place just went up. Everyone panicked and started running for the watch."

Windows. I jumped to the window in the left corner, opened it, swung out, grabbed a pipe and slid down.

"I turned around and broke a couple of other people's falls, but there were one or two who just wouldn't jump."

Quinton said, "The bigger people just couldn't get out. 'Bill Larsen, a pastor at the Church, got caught in the window, and I just watched him burn. He had one arm out, and I heard him scream: 'O God! No!'"

"In the next window beside Tex., said, "The place just went up. Everyone panicked and started running for the watch."

'Didn't realize implications'

Dean: believes Nixon knew

WASHINGTON (AP) — Ousted White House counsel John W. Dean III testified today that he believes President Nixon was involved in the Watergate affair but didn't realize the implications.

He said he hopes Nixon will be forgiven when all the facts are known.

"It's my honest belief that while the President was involved that he did not realize or appreciate at any time the implications of his own involvement, and I think that when the facts come out, I hope the President is forgiven," Dean said as he began testifying at the Senate's televised Watergate hearings.

Dean said two of Nixon's top aides, H.R. Haldeman and John D. Ehrlichman, had been involved in covering up the wiretapping from the first day or two after the June 17, 1972, break-in at Democratic headquarters.

He said a Haldeman aide, Gordon Strachan, told him that he had destroyed "damaging materials" in Haldeman's file after the break-in. He said Ehrlichman insisted that one of the wiretappers, E. Howard Hunt, be ordered out of the country. He said Ehrlichman told him to throw embarrassing material, found in Hunt's White House safe, into the Potomac River.

Dean also said he believes that former presidential counselor Charles W. Colson was more deeply involved in the affair than he admitted. He said former Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell approved payoffs to silence the Watergate defendants.

A day or so after the break-in, Dean said, he told Asst. Atty. Gen. Henry Petersen, who was in over-all charge of investigating the wiretapping, that "I didn't think the White House could withstand a wide open investigation."

Dean testified involuntarily, under a grant of immunity. He admitted that he assisted others in giving perjured testimony and made personal use of campaign money. He also testified about his personal efforts to cover up the affair.

Although Dean can't be prosecuted on the basis of what he told the Senate committee, he may be indicted and tried on the basis of other evidence. Federal prosecutors have refused to grant him immunity for trial testimony, and last week sealed their evidence against him to protect their case.

With his attractive wife sitting behind him, Dean opened his testimony by reading a 245-page statement at the rate of about a page a minute.

In the same opening comment, Dean admitted that he was involved in obstruction of justice, perjured testimony and "made personal use of funds that were in my custody."

The later reference was to $4,850 in campaign funds Dean said to have used for his honeymoon expenses—money he said he later repaid.

Dean's blonde wife sat behind the witness chair as the 34-year-old former White House aide began his appearance. It came as the Watergate hearings resumed after a one-week break during the summit talks between Nixon and Soviet leader Leonid I. Brezhnev.

Dean did not immediately issue that portion of his statement dealing with his personal conversations with the President last Sept. 15 and earlier this year.

White House aide John Caulfield told him he had tapped a newsman's telephone, possibly that of columnist Joseph Kraft, on orders of Ehrlichman.

Haldeman had authorized "any means, legal or illegal," to keep demonstrators out of sight of Nixon on trips and public appearances.

While he worked at the Justice Department, he was used as a courier to deliver to the White House FBI information on foreign travels of Mary Jo Kopechne, the secretary killed when Sen. Edward M. Kennedy's automobile ran off a bridge at Chappaquiddick, Mass., in July 1969.

Caulfield told him that within hours of the Chappaquiddick accident Anthony Ulasewicz, a private investigator employed secretly by Ehrlichman, was on the scene investigating. He said Ulasewicz posed as a newsman and asked the most embarrassing questions at news conferences during the aftermath of the incident.

An aide to Haldeman once said Haldeman ordered 24-hour spying on Kennedy, but this was called off when Caulfield protested it was unwise.

A top Secret Service official, whom Dean didn't name, brought him intelligence information about Sen. George McGovern in the spring of 1971. Dean said Colson had the information published.

He received $15,200 cash from Gordon Strachan on June 20-21, 1972, that he was told was unexpended funds of Charles W. Colson. On Oct. 12, Dean received $4,850 to pay for his wedding and honeymoon expenses and replaced it with his personal check.

Watergate lawyer once led McGovern group

By DONALD M. ROTHBERG

WASHINGTON (AP) — A top lawyer in the office of the special Watergate prosecutor once headed a task force on crime for Democratic candidate George McGovern.

James Vorenberg said in an interview that his role as a McGovern adviser was a very limited one. He said he wrote one McGovern speech on crime and held two press conferences on the issue.

During the 1972 presidential campaign, Vorenberg took strong issue with Republican claims that crime had been reduced during Nixon's first term.

At a Washington news conference in mid-October, Vorenberg challenged then Atty. Gen. Richard G. Kleindienst to debate the crime issue.

"Richard Nixon and his associates, in the Justice Department, have had the audacity to try to persuade the American people that the crime problem is being brought under control," Vorenberg said.

He said in an interview last week that he had expressed such views repeatedly before he joined the McGovern campaign. He also said that he knew relatively little about the Watergate case during the campaign and never had a role in any of McGovern's statements on it.

A professor at Harvard

Law School and former executive director of the presidential crime commission that reported in 1967, Vorenberg is a nationally recognized authority on law enforcement.

He was one of the first lawyers recruited by Archibald Cox, the special Watergate prosecutor. Vorenberg joined Cox for a short-term assignment in helping organize the rapidly growing staff of attorneys and investigators.

"I can imagine someone saying it would be inappropriate for someone who was McGovern's adviser on criminal justice to have a continuing role," Vorenberg said of his current job.

GETS A LAUGH... Leonid I. Brezhnev waves to the crowd at the Western White House and says "goodbye" in English, getting a big laugh from President and Mrs. Nixon. The Soviet leader ended 10 days of summit talks with the President Sunday. (AP Photofax)

'For all people of world'

Nixon: meetings hold promise of peace

SAN CLEMENTE, Calif. (AP) — The United States and the Soviet Union capped a week of summit talks today with a joint promise to seek new arms curbs, encourage peace in use of "peace for all the people of the world."

Voicing agreement, Brezhnev said the marathon negotiations meant "political détente is being backed up by military détente."

The communique, although it contained no major surprises, emphasized areas of agreement and hope while glossing over differences in such areas as achieving a Middle East settlement.

Some highlights of the document:

—Nixon has accepted an invitation to visit Moscow again in 1974, and summit talks on a regular basis are envisioned by the two countries.

—The President and the chairman of the Soviet Communist party believe their nations should aim for a total of $2 billion to $3 billion of trade during the next three years, a seemingly modest goal inasmuch as such trade for the past 12 months is estimated at about $1.3 billion.

—The two leaders "stressed the need to bring an early end to the military conflict in Cambodia" and stated "the political futures of Vietnam, Laos and Cambodia should be left to the respective peoples to determine, free from outside interference." There was no mention of halting arms aid to U.S. and Soviet allies in Southeast Asia.

—An Oct. 30 date was announced for the start of talks in Vienna on mutual balanced force reductions in Europe.

Nixon and Brezhnev viewed their summit as "a further milestone" on the march toward improved relations and spoke of decisions "to take further major steps to give these relations maximum stability and to turn the development of friendship and cooperation between their peoples into a permanent factor for worldwide peace."

They termed their nonbinding accord on avoiding nuclear war "a historical landmark" underscoring a mutual desire "to consider ways of strengthening peace and removing forever the danger of war, and particularly nuclear war."

As for a SALT talk in Geneva that were recessed in apparent stalemate pending the summit, the leaders declared that "prospects for reaching a permanent agreement on more complete measures limiting strategic offensive armaments are favorable."

Nixon and Brezhnev last Thursday signed a statement of basic principles that, in effect, were marching orders for their SALT negotiators.

Noting that a European security conference will begin in Vienna on July 3, Nixon and Brezhnev promised to "make efforts to bring the conference to a successful conclusion at the earliest possible time."

Among other things, a conference agreement presumably would ratify the postwar division of Germany.

Nixon loaned Brezhnev his jetliner to fly to Camp David, Md., for an overnight stay before the Soviet Communist party chairman's departure today for Moscow via Paris. Nixon bade him farewell at nearby El Toro Marine Air Station.

SAY GOODBYE... General Secretary Leonid I. Brezhnev of the Soviet Union and President Nixon bid each other farewell as Brezhnev prepares to board the President's plane at El Toro Marine Corps Air Station to begin the first leg of his journey home following 10 days of summit talks. Rogers happy with 'thaw'

By HARRY SCHWEID

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of State William F. Rogers agrees with Soviet leader Leonid I. Brezhnev that the "cold war" is about over, and he believes Americans approve of the thaw.

"There is every reason to think the American people support what President Nixon and Mr. Brezhnev have done," Rogers said in an interview while flying here with the visiting Soviet leader from the Western White House.

Brezhnev, in a nationwide radio-television address Sunday night, declared his week-long summit talks with Nixon "really put Soviet-American relations on a new track."

"That's the way I assess it, too," Rogers said. He added that he expects a softening in Soviet rhetoric.

"In all fairness it should be said that in the past the offensive language has not been one-sided," Rogers said.

"... Obviously we will have differences — continue to have public differences — but the rhetoric will be very different than during the 'cold war'."

Rogers hailed the agreement signed by Nixon and Brezhnev promising joint cooperation to avert the risk of war or nuclear disaster.

"It's a solemn commitment not to use force or the threat of force versus each other, versus an ally of the other, or against any other country," he said. "It also carries considerably further" the declaration of principles signed last year by Nixon and Brezhnev in Moscow to regularize the conduct of their two nations.

Rogers stressed that the new agreement requires "urgent consultation" between Washington and Moscow even when conventional war anywhere in the world appears imminent.

The secretary of state said he was "quite satisfied" with the range of subjects discussed by the two leaders and that he believed the summit talks accomplished more than had been anticipated.

Lea College faces closing in wake of heavy debts

ALBERT LEA, Minn. (AP) — With $1.7 million in debts, Lea College appears ready to close its doors after seven years.

Dr. Fred Glassburner, president, said, "It looks like we're through. I'm awfully sorry, but it appears there is no other way."

Lea was launched in the height of the college boom and grew from an initial 477 students in 1966 to 1,000 three years later. But it declined after the North Central Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools refused to accredit the institution because of its financial straits and lack of library facilities.

Albert Lea financial institutions and the Albert Lea-Freedom County Chamber of Commerce decided against continued support of Lea. The chamber said the school's problems appeared insurmountable.

Two motorcycle accidents cause injuries to two

INDEPENDENCE, Wis. — Two persons were injured in separate motorcycle accidents here Sunday.

John Slaby, 18, Independence, is being held in an Eau Claire, Wis., hospital for treatment of a leg injury after the motorcycle he was driving went out of control on Howard Street here at 7:40 p.m. Sunday.

Independence police reported Slaby apparently lost control on a curve in the street and struck three trees and a telephone pole.

At 10:30 a.m. Sunday, Ronald Skroch, rural Independence, was hurt slightly when the motorcycle he was driving and a car collided on a curve at the south edge of Independence on Highway 53.

He was treated for scrapes and bruises at Tri-County Memorial Hospital, Whitehall, and released.

Authorities said Skroch lost control of his motorcycle while southbound on a curve, colliding with a northbound car driven by James Duchalla, rural Independence. He was not injured and the car received only minor damage.

greeted spectators lining the streets Sunday for the grand parade.

Parade route crowded at Independence fete

INDEPENDENCE, Wis. (Special) — The waters of Bugle Lake mirrored a gigantic display of fireworks Saturday night, one of the highlights of the Independence Days celebration.

Miss Doris Kampa, 1973 Miss Independence, and her attendants, reigned over the three-day event which began with the coronation ceremony Friday and continued through Sunday.

About 12,000 people lined the streets Sunday to watch the grand parade led by the color guard of American Legion Post 186 and its auxiliary. Featured in the parade were floats, area bands, drum and bugle corps and machine units, in addition to winning entries from Saturday's kiddie parade.

There were games and contests for the youngsters, the midway was lined with rides and games, and spectators were entertained by free acts following the parade Sunday.

Winners of the kiddie parade were named in three categories.

For elaborate entries, first place went to "The Old Woman in the Shoe," with Amy and Willie Kulig; Carol, Barbara and John Berg, and Joey and Clare Matthey. "The Sesame Street Express," with passengers Mary, Teresa, Laura, Dawn and Tim Kulig placed second, and Shawn and Tim Kulig as "Raggy Ann and Andy," third.

Tammy, Sandy, Randy, Carmen and Lance Kowesky, were prize winners in the old time mom and dad category.

First through fourth place winners in the individual entries were Joni Sluga, Camilla Helgeson, LeeAnn Smieja and Leslie Rebarck.

Members of the local Lions Club provided barbecued chicken, and there were street dances both Saturday and Sunday evening.

Proceeds of the festival, sponsored by American Legion Post 186, will be used for community betterment.

Police investigating boathouse break-ins

City police were busy during the weekend investigating several theft, break-in and vandalism incidents, according to Chief Robert Carstenbrock.

Jesse Long, 251 E. Mark St., reported the theft late Friday night or early Saturday morning of several items from his boathouse moored at Latsch Island. Missing are 50 cassette tapes, an AM-FM tape player, a pair of headphones and two 2-by-3-foot speakers. The items are valued at $500.

ANOTHER boathouse break-in was reported by Mike Walsch, 114 W. Wabasha St., as occurring sometime after 11 p.m. Friday. Missing are 12 8-track stereo tapes and a pair of water skis. Loss is estimated at $60.

FHA announces loans for rental apartment centers

WHITEHALL, Wis. — The Farmers Home Administration has announced a $1,102,000 loan to nonprofit community organizations for development of rental apartment centers in five rural communities in Trempealeau County.

Sixty-eight rental units will be built for senior citizens and low income persons.

Twenty units will be constructed in Whitehall, 12 in Trempealeau, 12 in Blair, 16 in Osseo and eight in Independence.

The loans are to be repaid over a 60-year period and bear an interest rate of 7.25 percent.

James Borkowski, 860 37th Ave., Goodview, told police that someone had broken the windshield in his car while it was parked at East 3rd and Walnut streets about 11:30 p.m. Friday. Damage was estimated at $100.

A suitcase filled with women's clothing was taken from a locked car shortly after 1 a.m. Sunday. Janice Mullenbach, 227 W. Broadway, said the vehicle was parked behind Steve's Lounge near West 3rd and Main streets. Police said when she returned to the vehicle a door was open and a window rolled down. No value was given for the missing articles.

James Turner, 1651 W. Wabasha St., told police the right side of his 1964 car was dented while parked near West 3rd and Grand streets early Sunday morning. He estimated the damage at $25.

DEBORAH Drankowski, 4548 6th St., Goodview, reported that someone had taken her purse from her car parked at the East Side Bar, 851 E. Wabasha St., Friday night. No loss estimate was given.

Ivett Humphries, 1330 West Wincer Dr., told police that someone had taken a five-pound fire extinguisher from his boat moored at Dick's Marine between Tuesday morning and Tuesday evening. He valued the item at $30.

Jim Steffen, 222 W. Wabasha St., reported the theft of his bicycle from the family garage about 1:30 p.m. Saturday. The vehicle is a boy's 16-speed green Schwinn variety with no license. It is valued at $140.

camping at Latsch Island about 5:30 Sunday morning, a boat approached from the river and a man started shooting a small caliber rifle at him. Ten to 15 shots were fired, he said, one which struck his 1973 van.

HAROLD PORTER, Eagle Prairie, Minn., who was camping on Prairie Island Saturday night, reported the theft of a 40-gallon cooler full of food valued at $50. The cooler, with much of the food still in it, was found at 1:30 p.m. Sunday on the Commercial Harbor Dike Road and turned into the police station.

Barb Bierly, Rochester, Minn., reported the loss of a bikini swim suit which was hanging on a line in Prairie Island Park between 11 p.m. Saturday and 7:30 a.m. Sunday. The swim suit is valued at $20.

A break-in was reported at the Winona Clinic during the weekend but nothing was taken. The clinic's rear door was forced open and an inner office door was broken open. No damage estimate was given.

Tuition reimbursement for nonpublic students killed

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court today rejected tax deductions and tuition reimbursement for parents of nonpublic school students in the latest round of a continuing legal battle over state aid to private and parochial education.

The court invalidated a tax deduction program from New York and a tuition reimbursement scheme from Pennsylvania—two programs proponents had hoped would avoid the condemnation of the First Amendment's prohibitions of establishment of religion.

President Nixon has promised a federal tax credit for parents of children attending nonpublic schools, but action has been stalled pending a ruling on the issue.

While the court as condemned other tuition reimbursement programs, today's decision marked its first pronouncement on tax breaks for nonpublic school attendance.

Justice Lewis F. Powell Jr., writing for the majority, noted that the court has approved exemptions for religion from such things as property taxes. And he noted that these have a long history.

But, he said, special tax benefits for New York parents "cannot be squared with the principle of neutrality established by the decision of this court."

The court also invalidated New York laws providing funds for parochial schools in densely populated areas for heat, lights, custodial services and the like, and a program of direct payments to low-income families who send their children to nonpublic schools.

The New York tax deduction plan would permit parents of nonpublic school students with gross incomes of up to $25,000 a year to deduct as much as $3,000 from their taxable income when computing their state taxes.

The Pennsylvania plan would reimburse parents as much as $75 each year for an elementary student and $150 for each high school student. The state would not exercise supervision over the spending of the money and sought to reduce the contention surrounding legislative appropriations by dedicating 23 per cent of the revenue from the state cigarette tax to finance the program.

Again writing for the majority, Powell said that was insufficient to escape the mandates of the Constitution. Past court decisions have decreed that government shall remain neutral toward religion and shall avoid excessive entanglement.

In both the New York and Pennsylvania cases, the court found that the statutory schemes have the effect of advancing religion.

Damage extensive to new car

INDEPENDENCE, Wis. — No injuries were reported in a two-car crash here Sunday, but a new car received extensive damage.

Colliding at 4th and Jefferson streets here at 4:45 p.m. Sunday were cars driven by Robert J. Manka and Roman J. Lucas. Independence police said the Manka car was hit broadside by the Lucas car.

The Manka vehicle, a 1973 compact with 170 miles on it, was extensively damaged, authorities said. The Lucas sedan received only slight damage. An investigation continues.

Man bitten by rabid horse gets shots

LAKE CITY, Minn. — A rural Lake City man, bitten by a rabid horse June 15 is undergoing a series of rabies shots.

Vernon Dammann, and Mrs. Dammann are a retired couple who board riding horses at their facilities in the Birchwood area.

The 10-year old mare belonged to Mary Kay Heisenfeld, and was raised by Mrs. Dammann. The horse died June 16 and veterinarians at the University of Minnesota made a positive identification of rabies.

The mare is believed to have been bitten by a wild skunk or fox while running in a seven-acre wooded pasture with other horses.

Dammann was bitten on the arm when he was attempting to tie the horse so the veterinarian could administer shots.

Six injured in two-car crash in Hokah area

HOKAH, Minn. — Six persons were injured, two of them seriously enough to be hospitalized, in a two-car collision on Houston CSAH 18.1 miles north of here Sunday.

Drivers in the 7:15 p.m. collision were Peter W. Lepsch, Hokah Rt. 1, and James H. Zibrowski, 13 La Crescent Rd., 1, Minn.

Houston County Sheriff Jerry Olson said Zibrowski was southbound in the northbound lane when the collision occurred with the northbound Lepsch vehicle, which had slowed just before the crash.

Zibrowski was reported in good condition today in St. Francis Hospital, La Crosse, Wis., where he was admitted with chest contusions. Also in good condition there today is Jean Zibrowski, 17, Onalaska, Wis., a passenger in the Zibrowski car. She is being treated for lacerations and possible wrist and ankle injuries.

Two other passengers in the Zibrowski car and two passengers in the Lepsch vehicle were taken to St. Francis after the crash, but were released after treatment.

Passengers in the Zibrowski car were Edie Welke, Rushford Rt. 2, Minn., and Steven L. Welke, Hokah Rt. 1. Lepsch was not hurt, but his wife, Sharon, and two-month-old son, Jeffrey, were both treated.

Sheriff Olson said his department is continuing to investigate the accident.

Lake City to hold weekend skiing events

LAKE CITY, Minn. — The second annual Water Ski Days will be held in Lake City Saturday and Sunday. General theme of the celebration will be the tricentennial of the discovery of the Mississippi River.

Events planned for Saturday include an arts and crafts show and white elephant sale from 11 a.m. to 6 p.m.

A 60-unit parade is scheduled for 1:15 p.m. Sunday and a water ski show is set for 3 p.m. Sunday. Admission to the events is a Water Ski Days button currently on sale at Lake City businesses.

The parade will include drum and bugle corps, marching bands, floats and unicyclists with special guests: State representatives Victor Schulz, Richard Lemke and Roger Lautenburger.

The water ski show, presented by the Bald Eagle Water Ski Club, will include 45 performers exhibiting trick skiing, barefoot skiing, jumping and delta-wing kite demonstrations.

No one injured in car crash near Whitehall

WHITEHALL, Wis. (Special) — No one was injured in a one-car accident near here investigated by Trempealeau County authorities early Saturday.

The accident happened at 1:32 a.m. Saturday, when a car driven by Mark J. Arnold, Arcadia, left County Trunk O. The 1970 four-door received $200 damage.

200 families attend state Shorthorn meet

ST. CHARLES, Minn. (Special) — Kaehlers' Homedale Farms, 2½ miles north of St. Charles, was the scene of the 1973 Minnesota Shorthorn Association picnic Sunday.

About 200 Shorthorn breeders and their families attended the picnic held on the 800-acre Kaehler farm. Hosts for the event were Donald and Frank Kaehler, father and son partners.

More than 130 of Homedale's cattle were on display for association members. The picnic was highlighted by a cattle judging contest with Shorthorn fans of all ages participating.

Prizes were awarded to those members whose scoresheet most closely agreed with that of the judges. Out of a possible 150 points, prizes went to Harriet Moore with 141 in the women's division, Brian Burke, 145, in the junior division, and Walter Bolln, 143, in the men's division. They were awarded prizes donated by local merchants.

Mrs. Phillip Berends, St. Charles, was awarded three silver dollars for the tally most closely matching that of the average card.

The program included various addresses including one by Pete Swaffar, secretary of the National Association, Omaha, Neb. Swaffar called this "the most exciting time in the history of beef business." He urged Shorthorn breeders to study beef demands when considering future cattle breed selections. He reminded breeders that "longage is as important as quality."

In response to a plan to change the beef grading system, Swaffar said Shorthorn raisers should "stand up and be heard." Objecting to the changes, he said, would allow for less quality in the top grades.

A potluck lunch was served to the picnicers who represented breeders from the Tri-State area.

Boy, 11, sustains chest injuries in bike mishap

Orville Memmer, 11, son of Mrs. Sally Memmer, 1061 E. Wabasha St., is in satisfactory condition at Community Memorial Hospital today being treated for chest injuries resulting from a bicycle mishap Sunday afternoon.

Orville was riding his bike at East King and Wall streets about 1:30 p.m. when the wheels caught in the railroad tracks and he was thrown from the vehicle.

Petitions seek dwellings O.K.

Routine matters will face the Winona County Planning Commission at its monthly meeting Tuesday night.

On the commission's agenda are petitions seeking permission to construct a non-farm dwelling, install two mobile homes and reconvert four properties without subdividing.

The planners meet at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday in the commissioners' room of the temporary courthouse at West 3rd and Johnson streets.

John Hohenberg, Lewiston, is seeking permission to build a one-story home off a Norton Township road in Middle Valley southwest of Hollingsworth.

Marvin Edelbach, Winona Rt. 3, wants to install a mobile home on his property in Homer Valley off a Homer Township road.

Harold Laak, Stockton, will ask commission permission to install a mobile home just north of Stockton along CSAH 23 in Hillside Township.

Four applications seek permission to divide parcels of land without the complicated process of subdivision plating. They are:

New GOP chairman to see every county

BLOOMINGTON, Minn. (AP) — The new chairman of the Minnesota Republican party says he'll visit every county in the state this summer to meet with Republican workers and news media.

"I want to get active participation from the block worker on up," said state Sen. Robert J. Brown, Stillwater, following his election as party chairman Saturday night. "As a volunteer I want to get people to develop pride in the Republican party. I want to create some excitement."

The election of the 38-year-old Brown represented a slap at current party leadership. He won on the first ballot over Lars Carlson, 35, Minneapolis, and Ron Kelly, Apple Valley. The public issue was the choice between a fulltime, paid leader and a volunteer, unpaid chairman. But underlying that was lack of confidence in the GOP establishment which led the party to poor election showings the past three years. Brown's support came largely from outstate delegates to the GOP state Central Committee. His election also was a victory for Rudy Boschwitz, the free-swinging GOP national committeeman who has battled to break the party's traditional mold.

Boschwitz was the only major party leader to support Brown. Carolyn Ring, Richfield, was elected state chairwoman without opposition. She succeeds Lu Stocker, St. Paul, who retired after four years as chairwoman.

Brown succeeds David Krogsgaard, 37, who is stepping down after two years to open a political consulting business.

Brown characterized his victory as showing the party is open, that the rank-and-file can overturn the decisions of party leaders.

"It proves the average guy can get in and have a piece of the action," he said.

Meanwhile, state Sen. Robert Stassen, South St. Paul, who himself had been a candidate for the office briefly, said the election showed "this group was in the mood to make some changes."

"If we let it hurt the party, it will. If we don't, it'll be better for us," said Stassen, who was elected state party treasurer.

"He (Brown) is one of the hardest working guys I know," Stassen added. "If there is anybody that can carry it off, he can."

With 217 votes needed for election, Brown had 237, Carlson received 184 and Kelly eight.

Brown, an associate professor at St. Thomas College in St. Paul, was elected to the Minnesota Senate in 1966.

Brown will retain his Senate seat and serve as party chairman on a parttime, volunteer basis. He argued prior to his election that this would free the chairman to speak for the party without having to consider his position as a GOP employee.

Carlson would have retained the concept of a fulltime, salaried chairman.

Companies solve hitches in work

By JOHN CUNIFF
NEW YORK (AP) — When the computer man tells the boss, "I want to develop a new, on-line telecommunications system," then it's time for the boss to ask some questions, says Francis Melly.

Melly, who headed the electronic data processing operation for a major corporation before becoming a management consultant, estimates that American business already has 20 per cent more EDP capability than it needs.

But, he said, that isn't going to deter many companies, when faced with problems, from trying to solve them with even more equipment. Seldom, he maintains, does it occur to them that less rather than more might be the answer.

And yet, more and more companies are solving hitches in their work flow by pulling the plugs, so to speak, by disintegrating their integrated data systems, by—put it bluntly—decomputerizing.

Melly, who is president of the management systems division of Fry Consultants, can refer to several recent examples in which decomputerization and a return to more rudimentary manual procedures improved work flow and saved money. In one company, he relates, five sales department functions were part of an integrated electronic system. By removing two of the functions and making them manual, the company saved $400,000 a year, the equivalent of a $4.5 million sales increase.

In an admittedly extreme case, another company put its payroll on computer at a cost of $4,000 a month. It didn't take a wise man to discover that one clerk, at $800 a month, could do the very same job.

More complex was the operation at a major food company, which spent $2 million for on-line order processing equipment and programming that cost $1.2 million a year to operate.

Examining it after the company reported malfunctions, Melly discovered that the company's EDP people, enamored of the latest EDP techniques and hardware, had put together an elaborate system somewhat unrelated to needs and costs.

By simplifying the system, the company not only obtained more efficiency in its order processing, but stood to save $600,000 on operations.

There are instances, Melly will remind you, when a company can benefit from more EDP, and in that case he advises installations. But more frequently than before, he states, he finds savings possible in decomputerizing.

It is when sales and profits lag that higher executives begin to re-examine their EDP facilities, but even then, says

Melly, they often find it nearly impossible to obtain objective opinions within their own organizations.

Answers to the two basic questions, "Do we really need these systems?" and "What are the benefits?" too often elicit a defensive response from the EDP technician who devised the setup.

Moreover, most EDP managers like to keep abreast of the state of the art. They take pride in having the latest equipment, and they tend to view everything, says Melly, with "a narrow, parochial focus."

Working toward an obvious plug for the outside consultant, he maintains that to ask the manufacturer to analyze the system is to test the manufacturer's loyalty to himself.

Since the manufacturer's men sold the equipment and probably revised some of the customer's work flow to fit the system, it is highly unlikely they will ever advise unplugging. That is too much to expect, says Melly.

He didn't respond to the verbal prompting of a bystander, who said that many companies need to go through a computer detoxification program, but he did maintain that some companies are helpless in controlling EDP.

"It's like a drug," he said, explaining that companies become dependent upon the computer and the programs used by the computer, and that when problems arise they are unable to find relief except through more. And, in fact, that is often the only advice they receive.

Melly concedes that more

EDP capability is sometimes the answer. But more often times lies in the opposite action, he and his association.

Ireland to install its new president

DUBLIN (AP) — The Irish Republic installs an English-born Protestant as its fourth president today amid a marked display of religious conciliation. Erskine Childers, 68, is the second Protestant to hold the presidency of this overwhelmingly Roman Catholic nation but is the first to have won it by election. Dr. Douglas Hyde, the Protestant scholar who was the first president under the 1937 constitution, was appointed unopposed.

While Protestant and Roman Catholics fight in Northern Ireland, leaders of both faiths were to participate in Childers' inauguration.

The ceremony was to take place in Dublin Castle, once the symbol of British rule in Ireland. It was to be preceded by an interdenominational service at St. Patrick's Cathedral led by Dr. George Simms, archbishop of Armagh and primate of the Protestant Church of Ireland.

Archbishop Simms was to be joined by William Cardinal Conway, Roman Catholic primate of Dublin. Presbyterians, Methodists, Lutherans and Quakers also were to participate.

Childers, a former deputy prime minister, was the candidate of the opposition Flannery O'Brien party in last month's presidential election. He defeated Tom O'Higgins, candidate of the governing National Coalition.

Childers has promised to promote reconciliation with Northern Ireland, where the Protestant majority is intent on keeping its links with Britain. He has suggested calling an all-Ireland conference to seek steps toward national unity.

Whether the idea gets off the ground depends largely on the outcome of this week's elections in Ulster to choose a new provincial assembly.

The new first lady, Mrs. Rita Childers, is a Roman Catholic and a former press attache at the British Embassy in Dublin. Outgoing President Eamon De Valera, 90 and almost totally blind, left office Sunday at the close of his second seven-year term. He and his 85-year-old wife, Sinead, plan to live out their days in a retirement home run by the Sisters of Charity in south Dublin.

Cass Lake protest draws 8 arrests

CASS LAKE, Minn. (AP) — Law enforcement officials indicated Sunday night that only eight fishermen had been arrested on Leech Lake Indian Reservation for failure to purchase a $1 fishing stamp—and these before an announced fish-in was to begin.

As of Friday the stamps were required of non-Indians fishing on the reservation.

A group called the Cass Lake Citizens Committee had urged a fish-in for Saturday afternoon to protest the stamp requirement, the result of an agreement between the Leech Lake Chippewa band and the State of Minnesota.

But eight persons were arrested without protest Friday night on the dock of Maple Leaf Resort on Sucker Bay of Leech Lake.

Of the eight, only two are Minnesota residents. They are Maple Leaf Resort owner Dick Larsen and Jim Olson of St. Paul. The other six are John Forge, an Independence, Mo., attorney who will defend the eight; Harry Hibner and Leonard Blum of Michigan City, Ind.; Wayne Bowman of Chicago Heights, Ill.; Howard Jebb of Hickory Hills, Ill.; and Max Bowman of Morton Grove, Ill.

After they were arrested they drove into Cass Lake, where Larsen posted $20 bond each for himself, Forge and his three out-of-state guests. "It was the best $100 I ever spent," he said.

Forge said he requested an August trial. "We will, naturally, plead not guilty to the charge and I will present evidence that the Minnesota-Chippewa agreement is unconstitutional."

"It violates Article 2 of the Constitution and the Fifth and Fourteenth amendments," Forge said.

"I will also ask the court to consolidate this case so we can all be tried at once."

Under the agreement passed by the legislature and signed into law by Gov. Wendell Anderson, the Indians agreed not to engage in commercial fishing of game fish. In return, the $1 surcharge goes to the Chippewa band.

Indians have the right to hike the permit fee to 50 per cent of the state license in the future.

Opportunity and challenge on flood dike

Appointment of an advisory citizens committee on completion of Winona's flood control system should be welcomed. In asking the mayor to name the committee, the Corps of Engineers was reflecting its new concern about citizen reaction to its projects — sometimes negative — as well as operational guidelines dictated by environmental concerns.

The 12-man committee has an opportunity and a challenge.

The committee's opportunity is to be the pipeline for community feelings and needs concerning protection from high Mississippi River stages, the preservation of property values, public access to the river, multiple use of the dikes, beautification of existing and created areas, financing, and related matters.

This is no small opportunity and responsibility. The location and character of the dike will have as profound an influence on the development and history of the city as the location of the railroads has had.

The challenge to the committee is the limitation on its role. First of all, the members function only in an advisory capacity, mainly to the corps but also to the city council, which will have an opportunity eventually to approve the corps' plans. A committee of this kind ordinarily is handicapped because it is without staff and consequently often finds itself in the role of only reacting to proposals instead of initiating them. Skilled people are, of course, on the committee, and they can make a contribution, but without an engineering staff of its own the members will be challenged to get beyond the role of a reaction panel. For that reason we hope they make full use of such independent studies that already have been made of such critical points as Levee Park.

Everybody wants a dike. At present the federal government, through an appropriation to the Corps of Engineers, pays for it. The situation is comparable to a family on welfare: you tend to be grateful for what you get. Now the corps has asked for advice about the welfare for the city. Let's be thankful for the welfare and for the opportunity to influence its terms. — A.B.

Dairy Days: a significant downtown event

Congratulations to the 59 members of the Downtown Promotional Association, extension services and everyone else involved for sponsoring Dairy Days on the Plaza.

It was an interesting and educational program. Interesting because of the variety: a horse show, a music trio, a bake-off, a milking demonstration, exhibits of outstanding dairy animals, a display of artificial insemination, a cooking demonstration by Minnesota's Dairy Ann, a bake sale, and so on. Educational for city folks, including many children who don't have easy access to cows and horses.

It also reaffirms that Winona realizes the importance of agriculture to the economy of the area.

You might also record the promotion as another piece of evidence that downtown Winona — concerned by the Housing & Redevelopment Authority's failure so far to develop the urban renewal block — doesn't plan to die. — A.B.

It is disturbing that there is a growing, but we believe fallacious, notion that a constitutional amendment can fix up all, or most, of the evils feared by those opposed to abortion. Quite the contrary. First, it is a grave mistake to write what amounts to a criminal statute into the basic charter; second, it simply wouldn't work. Not as long as the need, as many see it, for abortions continues. This nation suffered grievously from the well-intended Prohibition Amendment. The proposed anti-abortion amendment, we sincerely feel, is of the same tragic, divisive effects. — Minneapolis Star.

Soviet words and deeds

Anthony Lewis

LONDON — Dmitri Segal is a young Soviet scholar of extraordinary brilliance and breadth of interest. His field is linguistics, but he has worked also on folklore and anthropology. He has written on language theory, on mythology, on the structure of Edward Lear's limericks.

Last Dec. 26 Segal and his wife applied at the visa office in Moscow for permission to leave the U.S.S.R. for Israel. Months later they got the answer: No. The reason given was "lack of parental consent."

Segal is 36, his wife 29 — and the age of majority in the Soviet Union is 18. Those who have seen the official form on which Soviet citizens must apply to emigrate say that it says nothing about parental permission. But when the authorities want to, they simply impose that condition no matter what the age of the applicants.

The problem for the Segals is Elena's father, Dmitri Tolstol, who is the son of the Soviet writer, Aleksei Tolstol. After giving his consent for his daughter's departure, he changed his mind. He then circulated an "open letter" saying that members of "prominent families" should not be allowed to leave.

Immediately after they applied for visas, the Segals were deprived of their work — as is the regular practice. Friends who have seen them recently describe them as desperate.

THE CASE of the Segals throws some realistic light on Leonid Brezhnev's assurances to members of Congress about Soviet treatment of would-be emigrants. He said that 95 percent of the Jews who asked to leave have been allowed to; only 738 recent applicants had been turned down, 149 on grounds of national security; the suspended exit tax would not be reimposed.

Such assurances from the leader of the Soviet Communist Party carry great weight. That he should even talk with American politicians about what the U.S.S.R. has always considered an internal matter is highly significant.

BUT THE realities remain, and for the human beings involved they can be terrible. Not that a national judgment should be made on the basis of one injustice. The point about the Segals' case is its demonstration of continuing arbitrary treatment that simply does not fit the assurances.

There are many other cases of entirely arbitrary denials of exit visas, hundreds known in the West and probably many more unknown.

It would be foolish to think that the United States, as part of its new relationship with the U.S.S.R., can force early or dramatic changes in Soviet legal practices — indeed, in the whole Soviet view of law and authority. Brezhnev and his colleagues cannot and will not abandon their system of power.

But it would be just as wrong for U.S. officials to pretend that all is well when it is not. American pressure can make some difference.

CREP gift report asked

James Reston

WASHINGTON — Before long the prosecutors in the Watergate case will start investigating the big financial contributions to the Nixon reelection committee, and this is likely to open up a whole new chapter in the current political scandals.

The factual situation, which the big corporations and their lawyers will be wise to look into on an urgent basis, is as follows: The names of the big contributors were compiled by former Commerce Secretary Maurice Stans, the principal Republican fund-raiser, but were shredded when the burglars were caught in Democratic headquarters.

HOWEVER, when the lawyers for John Gardner's Common Cause were taking a deposition from Hugh W. Sloan Jr., he told them that another copy of the list was sent to President Nixon and that he understood it was in the possession of Rosemary Woods, the President's secretary.

On investigation, this proved to be true, and on request to the White House, the copy was turned over to the Common Cause lawyers and subsequently to the Justice Department prosecutors and the Senate Watergate investigating committee.

This almost certainly assures that the names and contributions will be published eventually if not soon. Accordingly, anyone who fails to come forward now and report voluntarily any improper or illegal contributions runs the risk of seeming to be a party to the conspiracy that was financed with contributed funds.

The understanding here is that the Internal Revenue Service has an unpublished rule that anyone who comes forward voluntarily and lists previously undisclosed contributors, before audit and before the facts are disclosed from other sources, is likely to escape criminal penalties, though not interest charges or civil penalties.

Thus, well-informed lawyers in Washington, who know about the list in the hands of the prosecutors, are urging their clients to check on whether their gifts to the committee were accurately reported, and if not, to report the gifts accurately and voluntarily at once, not only in their own interests, but to help the prosecutors and get rid of a corrupt system.

DISCLOSURE can be made either directly to the Watergate prosecutors, or to the Office of Federal Elections, General Accounting Office, Washington, D.C. Otherwise, once the list is published, it is likely to be the object of intense investigation, not only by the Watergate prosecutors and the Ervin committee but by various other committees planning new campaign financing legislation.

Particular attention is likely to be paid in these investigations to contributions made in the name of corporation officials with funds actually made available indirectly by the corporations themselves.

In the short run, these investigations could be troublesome to some big corporations and labor unions, but in the end, campaign financing reform could relieve the corporations of a shake-down system that has become increasingly expensive and embarrassing to them in recent years.

Usually the pressure is on the big companies from the political fund-raisers to contribute large sums, often in violation or evasion of the election laws. Some of them contribute to as many as a hundred different campaigns, sometimes voluntarily, sometimes in the hope of future favors to be received, but usually because, like the politicians, they are caught in a system they don't like and contribute because they are told their competitors are doing it.

FOR THE MOMENT, the prosecutors are concentrating on what was done with the money, but Phase 2 will be where the money came from, and under what circumstances, and this will obviously involve a much larger cast of characters and some of the biggest names and corporations in the country.

John Gardner at Common Cause suggests that voluntary disclosure should apply now not only to the big companies and unions but to every donor of unreported gifts over $100.

"REMEMBER - ON MONDAY IT TURNS INTO A PUMPKIN!"

Inflation is called No. 1 political issue

William S. White

WASHINGTON — A week of travel and of casual conversations away from Washington suggests to this columnist that inflation has about 10 times the impact of Watergate as a political issue.

President Nixon is, of course, being hurt by the Watergate scandals, but he is also the beneficiary of a great deal of pro-underdog sympathy. No outcome of this affair, short of some proof of actual impeachable conduct by the President, is likely to leave him unable to govern the country. And whether this ability had been or was likely to be lost has been the most aching of all questions from the start.

Disgust, impatience and incredulity at the grossness of the actions of men around the President and contempt for the rush among them to put the finger on the other fellow is real and general. Nevertheless, one almost never hears any suggestion that the President could or should be ousted.

In short, such wounds as Mr. Nixon has suffered from the Watergate are far from mortal.

Beyond Watergate, however, the President is in serious trouble — by observation about as much from Republicans as from Democrats — on economic questions. Anger at higher and higher living costs is almost universal. And fear is in the land.

People are afraid that the Administration has waited far too long to be able now to break the back of inflation. And accompanying this apprehension is an even deeper one. There is a great concern that first a major recession and then an outright depression might sweep the nation. The precise reasoning behind talk of this sort is invariably vague.

But it is there and it is about as common among the sophisticated as among the simple.

Moreover, it is my belief, for what it may be worth, that a hurricane of hostility toward "the interests" — the very rich as distinguished from simply the rich and the very powerful — is forming just over the national horizon.

Money is the preoccupation of the country — that is, too much money for some people and too little money for most people — and a new and profoundly anti-fat-cat populism is gaining much ground. It is a populism that is irrelevant to party labels. Never before in memory has a national political crisis been so remote from ordinary considerations, and habits of party loyalty and interparty dislikes.

Perhaps this is so in part because so many Democrats voted for Mr. Nixon only last year. In any event, almost nobody seems to care anymore about his or any other fellow's party registration or tradition.

Mr. Nixon and the Congress

An editorial in Christian Science Monitor.

There has been a big change in Washington. It dates from the arrival at the White House of Melvin Laird and Bryce Harlow.

It was articulated last week in Peking, Ill., when President Nixon announced a new "partnership" with the Congress in which, he said, "we can accommodate our positions without abandoning our principles." The new "partnership" is now being implemented.

THE MOST impressive implementation yet is the acceptance by the President of three spending bills sent to him by the Congress which he had previously opposed. They represent money for programs important to various individual congressmen and senators, but which were anathema to the departed members of the pre-Laird-Harlow White House.

Along with this was a compromise between the White House and the House Banking Committee on the terms of a bill giving the President authority to control exports of grain and edible oils. It is less than the sweeping authority the White House had previously requested, but Mr. Nixon labeled it a "reasonable compromise."

These two acts of presidential compromise followed by one day the postponement for a week of the Watergate hearings as a courtesy and consideration for Mr. Nixon.

ANY "LINKAGE" between the Watergate postponement and the White House compromises on legislation is entirely unofficial, unrecorded, and unseable — but obviously exists. There has been a trade of things Congress wanted for things the White House wanted. It was a compromise on both sides. And this sort of compromise is normal, natural, and proper to any old Washingtonian. It is the way the system did work — until the men around Mr. Nixon interpreted last November's election victory as a "mandate" to do things differently.

The leading exponents of the "mandate" theory were relieved of their White House duties by the President's statement of April 30 on Watergate. Melvin Laird's appointment was announced on June 6 and Bryce Harlow's on June 14. Both men have long been wanted in the White House by the Republican leaders in Capitol Hill. Both understand the way in which Washington functions. Both believe in a "partnership" between Congress and the White House in which the wishes and interests of the Congress are equally important.

HOW LONG all this will last is of course something no one can yet foresee. It represents a return to the traditional system in Washington. It is what any veteran congressman or government civil servant regards as "normal." The return to it represents certainly a truce in the violent confrontation between Congress and the White House which built up immediately after the second Nixon inauguration and which reached the level of a true constitutional crisis by mid-April.

At that time White House spokesmen were claiming for the presidency an unlimited right to wage war, total control over spending priorities, and immunity from congressional or judicial inquiry for the entire federal establishments.

All that is gone now, as it should. Washington is back to a system of checks and balances, a system of regular consultation and compromise between Capitol Hill and the White House. Provided it lasts, it is the end to the real constitutional crisis. The chances seem to be that it will last. Certainly it will last as long as Melvin Laird and Bryce Harlow have anything to say about how the White House should be run.

Public says if Nixon knew of bugging he should quit

Harris Survey

By 62-22 percent, a majority of the American people feel that President Nixon "should not resign" on the basis of information developed up to the point when the Watergate hearings were suspended last week.

However, by 48-39 percent, a plurality of the public believes he "should resign," if it is proven that President Nixon knew about the original plan to bug Democratic headquarters. And by 46-40 percent, there is narrow backing that "he should resign" if it is proven that President Nixon ordered the cover-up of White House involvement in Watergate after Republican agents were caught there.

THUS, ALBERT By a narrow margin, the American people have reached a conclusion that, if presidential involvement in the planning or cover-up of Watergate "can be proven," there is little choice left but for Mr. Nixon to resign.

As of a week ago, before former White House Counsel John Dean was to testify before the Senate Watergate Committee, public suspicions about President Nixon's personal involvement in Watergate were clearly on the rise. For the first time, by a narrow margin, a plurality then felt he did know about the attempt to bug Democratic headquarters before it happened. Between June 14th and 18th, a cross-section of 1509 people 18 years of age and over were asked in personal interviews conducted in their homes across the country:

"Do you feel that President Nixon personally knew about the attempt to wiretap Democratic headquarters before it happened or don't you feel he knew about that?"

THE TURNABOUT since last fall on public suspicion about the President's personal knowledge about Watergate has been dramatic. The number who feel he did not have prior knowledge has dropped from 66 to 36 percent, while the number who feel he did know about the wiretap attempt has risen from 11 to 40 percent.

The public has even less doubts about Mr. Nixon's involvement in the cover-up of the Watergate affair. People were asked:

"Do you feel President Nixon knew about the attempt to cover up White House involvement in Watergate while it was going on, or do you think he did not know about the coverup?"

By mid-June, before the Dean testimony, a clear majority had become convinced that Mr. Nixon had knowledge of the cover-up. On the other hand, people were not quite as convinced that the President ordered the cover-up.

Nixon ordered cover-up 30

Jeopardy of exports seen in price target

WASHINGTON (AP) — One of the administration's top farm policy officials says Congress could jeopardize future agricultural exports by setting commodity target prices at too high a level.

Asst. Secretary of Agriculture Carroll G. Brumthaver told a meeting of farm writers that a "moderate farm program" is needed so that exports can continue to flourish.

The Senate recently approved a farm bill setting target prices of $2.28 per bushel of wheat, $1.53 per bushel of corn and 43 cents per pound of cotton. The administration says those are too high and wants the House to reduce those levels in the farm bill it is now writing.

Brumthaver said the United States will be working later this year for a reduction in world trade barriers. Those now cost American farmers between $4 billion and $6 billion a year in lost exports, he said.

"If we go to the talks with a brand-new set of high target prices for our farmers, we can forget about convincing other countries to lower their protection systems for their farmers," Brumthaver said.

ETTRICK, Wis. (Special) — The Rev. and Mrs. Harold Aasland are vacationing at Yellowstone Park. Their twin daughters, Beverly and Barbara, will be employed there for the summer.

ON WHETHER or not Mr. Nixon initiated the actual orders for the cover-up, the public still gives him the benefit of the doubt, and nearly one in three of those interviewed had yet to make up his mind. This is an important fact about current public opinion, for it indicates there is still some room for the President to seek an escape from public condemnation if he can prove that he was misled or misinformed about the cover-up.

The conclusion of most Americans in mid-June was that the President should not resign. The cross-section was asked:

"In view of what has happened in the Watergate affair, do you think President Nixon should resign as President or not?"

Basically, the American people are awaiting the rest of the testimony before the Senate Watergate Committee. But the shape of public opinion and how far people would want to go if presidential involvement in the bugging and the cover-up were proven now is moving into the decisive stage. People were asked:

"If it is proven that President Nixon knew about the original plan to bug Democratic headquarters, do you think he should resign or not?"

Most feel that proof of presidential involvement in the bugging plan should be followed by a resignation. People feel almost as strongly about Mr. Nixon resigning if it were proven that he ordered the cover-up.

Farm income expected to exceed '72

By DON KENDALL
AP Farm Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Agriculture Department, for now at least, is sticking by a new prediction that net farm income this year will exceed $22 billion.

That estimate, despite a threat of fuel shortages and possible reductions in some crop production, would be up from the previous high of $19.2 billion last year.

It also would be about $1 billion more than USDA economists estimated for 1973 net farm income earlier this spring. The main reason for the improved outlook: higher prices of farm commodities.

But economists say privately that the $22-billion estimate is highly qualified and that much depends on how many acres of corn and soybeans particularly, were actually planted this spring.

It also depends greatly on whether farmers can get sufficient fuel to cultivate and harvest crops this year. Weather, always a factor, could add further doubts.

The department will issue in July a report showing revised acreage plantings for spring crops. Although those will give a better idea of how production might shape up, production estimates based on field conditions will not begin until August for major spring crops.

Communists move to capture key road point

PHNOM PENH, Cambodia (AP) — Communist forces made a twin-pronged advance today against a cluster of government positions protecting a key road junction nine miles southwest of Phnom Penh. Authorities reported heavy fighting.

U.S. B52s and F111s flew bombing missions against enemy concentrations in the area throughout the night, field reports said.

A major battle appeared to be shaping up around a road bridge at the village of Kompong Tuol, standing at the junction of north-south Highway 3 and provincial Rte. 38, which joins it from the east.

Insurgent forces attacked government positions from the south and the northwest, the reports said. Elements of a crack government division were deployed around three hamlets and the district town of Kampong Kantout.

American tactical air strikes went on throughout the morning in support of the government defenders. Witnesses said the strafing was the heaviest since fighting began along Highway 4 a week ago.

Communist battalions taking part in the latest action had been concentrating there for several days after breaking off contact along Highway 4, the government's supply route to the deepwater port of Kampong Som. Highway 4 was reopened June 19 after nearly two weeks of fighting.

Earlier in the day, Communist sappers blew up a government ammunition depot six miles from Phnom Penh. The military command said several tons of bombs, artillery shells and napalm were destroyed, but no casualties were reported.

In Saigon, the Viet Cong announced it and the South Vietnamese government have agreed to resume the exchange of prisoners next Friday.

The exchange of prisoners was held up due to the Viet Cong's refusal to ensure security measures for members of the International Commission of Control and Supervision to travel to the release sites.

It was not immediately known what measures have been established for the commission to supervise the upcoming releases.

Radisson Hotel Corp. to build 10 hotels

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. (AP) — Plans to construct 10 new hotels have been announced by the Radisson Hotel Corp.

A Radisson spokesman said Saturday the expansion will increase the chain's accommodations from 2,000 rooms in eight hotels to more than 5,000 rooms in 18 hotels by 1976.

The new hotels are planned for Fargo, N.D.; Boston, Mass.; Tempe, Ariz.; Dallas, Texas; Cypress Gardens, Fla.; New Orleans, La.; Spokane, Wash.; Reno, Nev.; Kansas City, Mo.; and Emmitsburg, Md.

LEGAL NOTICE

TO ALL PRESENT AND FORMER ANNUAL RATE REGULAR POSTAL EMPLOYEES AND THE REPRESENTATIVES OF DECEASED ANNUAL RATE REGULAR POSTAL EMPLOYEES REGARDING POSSIBLE ENTITLEMENT TO BACK WAGES

This notice is published in conformity with a Consent Order entered August 26, 1971 by the United States District Court for the District of Columbia in settlement of Civil Actions Nos. 3593-69 and 3595-69. Its purpose is to bring this settlement to the attention of all persons who were full-time annual rate regular employees of the United States Postal Service (as used herein the term "Postal Service" includes the former Post Office Department) at any time between approximately March 4, 1966 and January 7, 1972, as well as representatives of such employees who are now deceased. The settlement involves the recovery of back wages for overtime under Public Law 89-301, for temporary re-scheduling under the conditions set forth under paragraph I-A below. This notice is intended to advise such persons of their rights regarding this matter. It should be read carefully.

The lawsuits described above were filed on December 19, 1969 as "class actions" on behalf of all such present and former annual rate regular postal employees. The named plaintiffs in these suits are certain individual postal employees and the following postal labor unions: American Postal Workers Union, AFL-CIO; Mail Handlers Division of the Laborers' International Union, AFL-CIO; and the National Association of Letter Carriers, AFL-CIO.

I. SUMMARY OF THE CONSENT ORDER ENTERED IN THE "CLASS ACTIONS"

The Consent Order establishes rules regarding the payment of back wages to those present and former postal employees (or the representatives of deceased postal employees) who were entitled to, but did not receive, time and one-half for work performed outside of their regular schedule as a result of a required temporary schedule change as set forth below. A complete statement of these rules is not set forth in this notice. The following rules represent only the basic conditions which apply to claims. Detailed Operating Instructions and the Consent Order will be available to potential claimants, as indicated in paragraph E below.

A. Qualification for Back Wages under "Class Action" Consent Order

1. For the period from approximately March 4, 1966 to January 7, 1972, annual rate regulars were entitled to overtime wages under Public Law 89-301 for work performed during days or hours outside of their regular schedule as a result of a required temporary schedule change, unless the schedule change occurred while they were occupying any of the following positions: (1) postmaster; (2) rural carrier; (3) postal inspector; (4) road duty employee (as defined in 39 U.S.C. Sec. 3581 (1962)); (5) substitute employee; (6) hourly rate regular employee; (7) annual rate regulars who, between March 4, 1965 and July 29, 1966, were in salary level PFS-8 and above; (8) annual rate regulars who, between July 29, 1966 and October 6, 1967, were in salary level PFS-11 and above; (9) annual rate regulars who, after October 6, 1967, were in salary level PFS-12 and above or equivalent levels.

2. Any temporary schedule change on the part of an annual rate regular which was not made at his request for his convenience is a "required schedule change" for which the employee is entitled to overtime compensation for work performed outside of his regular schedule, without regard to the nature of the work performed under the temporary schedule. Temporary schedule changes made at an employee's request for his convenience are not compensable at the overtime rate.

B. Claims Procedure under "Class Action" Consent Order

1. The Consent Order establishes procedures for the filing of claims by present employees, former employees and the representatives of deceased employees who assert entitlement to overtime back wages under paragraph A above.

2. Claims Procedure for Present Employees (a) As soon as practical after July 30, 1973, all present employees will be notified by their installation head that their time records are available for examination. In most cases these records date back to the first pay period in which regular work schedules were assigned under Public Law 89-301, and end with the pay period terminating on January 7, 1972.

(b) Each present employee is entitled to be excused from his normal tour of duty for up to one hour to review his time records and will be compensated for that hour at his straight time rate of compensation. In addition, he may remove his records from the installation for the purpose of self-review.

(c) Special claim forms will be available in all postal installations. It will be necessary for the employee to indicate on the claim form those hours for which he believes he is entitled to recover overtime back wages.

(d) An employee's failure to file a claim, with his installation head within 90 days of receipt of notice that his time records are available, for inspection will waive his right to present a claim. However, upon good cause shown, the time for filing a claim shall be extended.

(e) An employee may submit a claim even though his time records are no longer available.

(f) After an employee has submitted his claim, the local installation head will review it to determine whether the claim should be approved for payment. If the claim is denied, the employee will be entitled to appeal.

3. Procedure for Former Employees and the Representatives of Deceased Employees Essentially, the same rules apply to claims by former employees and representatives of deceased employees, with the following exceptions:

(a) The Postal Service will attempt to notify former annual rate regulars of their rights in this matter by forwarding a copy of this notice to their last known address on file with the United States Civil Service Commission or the appropriate Postal Service Data Center.

(b) Any former employee, or the representative of a deceased employee, who receives this notice from the Postal Service by mail must request access to the employee's time records in writing within 60 days of receiving such notice or waive his right to present a claim.

(c) Any former employee, or the representative of a deceased employee, who does not receive a copy of this notice from the Postal Service by mail must request access to the employee's time records within three years of July 1, 1973, or waive his right to present a claim.

(d) The time records of former employees are located at the post offices and postal installations where these employees worked. Accordingly, a former employee or a representative of a deceased employee may request access to such records (1) by visiting, or writing directly to, the head of each post office or postal installation where the employee was employed, or (2) by asking any local postmaster for assistance in obtaining such records. When making the request, a former employee must identify himself as a former postal employee who is requesting access to his time records under the "Consent Order Procedure," and must state his name, social security number, and the post office(s) or postal installation(s) where he worked. The representative of a deceased employee should follow the same procedure with regard to the deceased employee involved and must also indicate on what basis he or she is acting as the deceased employee's representative.

(e) Upon receiving notice from the Postal Service that the records are available for examination, a former employee or the representative of a deceased employee must submit his claim as provided in paragraphs B2(c)-(f) of this notice.

C. Notification of Determination of Claims

1. The installation head or his designee will notify the claimant in writing of the disposition of his claim within 90 days of the date the claim is filed. Failure to notify the claimant of a determination of the claim within 90 days will constitute automatic approval of the entire claim. If a claim is denied, the decision will state the reason(s) for denial.

2. If, within 30 days of receipt of the written decision regarding the claim, the claimant fails to advise the Postal Service official who signed the decision that he either (1) accepts the decision in full, or (2) rejects the decision in full, he will be deemed to have accepted the decision in full.

3. If the claimant rejects the decision, he may appeal in accordance with the procedures set forth in the Operating Instructions.

4. Employees who remain part of the class and also remain represented by counsel for the named plaintiffs shall be bound by such counsel's decisions regarding the settlement or other disposition of claims.

D. Payment of Claims

When a final decision has been made to pay the claim, the claimant will promptly receive payment from the Postal Service in accordance with the decision.

E. Additional Information regarding the contents of this notice may be obtained from Donald M. Murtha, Esquire, counsel for plaintiffs, Department P, Suite 703, 1828 L Street, N.W., Washington, D.C. 20036. A copy of the Consent Order may be obtained by writing to Mr. Clyde Wilson, Claims Administrator, Room 3332, U.S. Postal Service Headquarters, 12th & Pennsylvania Avenue, N.W., Washington, D.C. 20260. The Operating Instructions and claim forms will be available in postal installations when the claims procedure is implemented.

F. ELECTIONS AVAILABLE TO MEMBERS OF THE CLASS

The Consent Order declares that the named plaintiffs are proper representatives of the entire class of present and former postal employees entitled to recover overtime back wages under Public Law 89-301. Under the Consent Order and Rule 23 of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure, members of the class are entitled to be advised that the following elections are available to them:

A. Any person who claims entitlement to overtime back wages under Public Law 89-301, but does not wish to participate in this "class action" litigation will, if he requests exclusion, be excluded by the court from the class action insofar as his individual claim is not within the reach of Rule 23(b)(1) or (2), Federal Rules of Civil Procedure. Such exclusion must be requested by letter addressed to the undersigned at P.O. Box 978, Ben Franklin Station, Washington, D.C.

B. Any person who wishes to participate in the class action litigation must file a written statement of his election to participate in the class action litigation with the undersigned at P.O. Box 978, Ben Franklin Station, Washington, D.C.

C. Any person who wishes to participate in the class action litigation must file a written statement of his election to participate in the class action litigation with the undersigned at P.O. Box 978, Ben Franklin Station, Washington, D.C.

D. Any person who wishes to participate in the class action litigation must file a written statement of his election to participate in the class action litigation with the undersigned at P.O. Box 978, Ben Franklin Station, Washington, D.C.

E. Any person who wishes to participate in the class action litigation must file a written statement of his election to participate in the class action litigation with the undersigned at P.O. Box 978, Ben Franklin Station, Washington, D.C.

F. Any person who wishes to participate in the class action litigation must file a written statement of his election to participate in the class action litigation with the undersigned at P.O. Box 978, Ben Franklin Station, Washington, D.C.

G. Any person who wishes to participate in the class action litigation must file a written statement of his election to participate in the class action litigation with the undersigned at P.O. Box 978, Ben Franklin Station, Washington, D.C.

USELESS LAWN . . . Benjamin Wiener, New Rochelle, N.Y., tends the vegetable garden three years ago as a modest patch. Today it takes up a good chunk of lawn. (New York Times photo)

Grass has no splendor for New York gardener

By GEORGIA DULLEA
NEW ROCHELLE, N.Y. — Benjamin S. Wiener finds no splendor in the grass. "Grass is dumb," he muttered from his deck chair the other day. "It's a lot of green, non-edible stuff that costs me money."

His lawn looks as green as all the others on Selon Drive and he pays a gardener $33 a month to keep it that way. But his lawn has been shrinking—little by little—for the last three years.

Wiener, 47-year-old president of the Durotone Company, a Yorkers carpet cleaning and service business, scorns suburban Westchester County's preoccupation with nature's carpet.

"WE LIVE IN a grass country. We live in a grass world," he cried, waving an arm at lush lawns across the street. "Do you see anyone walking on those lawns or sitting on those lawns? Of course not. They're totally useless."

Nor, for that matter, is anyone farming a lawn—except Wiener. Here, in a neighborhood of $60,000 houses on one-third acre properties, 40 tomato stakes—bearing varieties from Beef to Belgium Giants—march along the Wiener corner plot.

"But you don't notice them unless you're really looking, do you?" he asked. One who really looks also finds orange beets, lemon cucumbers, purple cauliflower and some other oddball vegetables that don't turn up every day in the supermarket bins.

Benjamin Wiener's garden began three years ago as a modest patch (15 feet by 10 feet) of home crops (tomatoes, eggplant, squash)—more a statement against grass than anything else.

TODAY it takes up a good chunk of lawn (24 feet by 90 feet), and the asparagus hedge is reaching for the neighbor's rose border, and the lettuce alone would fill several pages in a seed catalog. ("There's bibb, Boston, buttercrunch, green heart, ice, oak leaf . . .")

"No romaine. I've gone beyond that," said Wiener with a sigh. "The first year I was delighted with my romaine but now I grow only the delicate lettuces—Boston and ruby, for instance. We eat them plain. It's a shame to kill them with oil and vinegar. Or, I'll whip up a light mayonnaise."

Wiener's smile suggested he could scarcely recall the winter chores. "The hardest part of making your lawn into a vegetable garden is ripping out the grass," he confided, "that's the back-breaking job."

"The rest is easy. And it's fun. I have a lot more fun than people who cultivate zinnias or some other silly thing. And I have pretty lettuce I can take in and eat every night."

So far, the Wiener's grass-growing, zinnia-growing neighbors seem intrigued by his garden. "They're curious," Mrs. Wiener said, "and a little jealous, I think." But they always come away carrying a few heads of lettuce and shaking their own.

"Next year," announced Wiener, "I'll sweep a hand across what's left of the lawn, 'all farm.'"

"I would like someplace to sit," said Mrs. Wiener.

Wiener, who cooks for his wife and three daughters when they're home (the two older ones attend college), admits that the garden reflects his own tastes: "I'm going in for Chinese cooking so I grow a lot of pea pods and long red cayenne peppers for Szechuan dishes."

Shirley Wiener, 45, a department manager for Bonwit Teller's Scarsdale branch, has a weakness for kohlrabi, a vegetable her husband has banished from the garden. And not just because he happens to hate it. "Your kohlrabi took up too much room last year," he told a glum Mrs. Wiener.

TO HEAR Wiener tell it, his gardening routine sounds as offbeat as his harvest. It begins about 4 o'clock when he arrives home from work and pours himself a Scotch and water.

"Then, I just walk around there," he said, nodding at the tidy rows of leafy greens, "and between sips of Scotch, I weed for about half an hour." After that, he picks and prepares dinner.

Your horoscope — Jeane Dixon

For TUESDAY, June 26

Your birthday today: Finds you making progress in your philosophic outlook as well as in genuine achievement. Career prospects are brighter, entail further self-education. You are apt to be so busy this year that friends and loved ones may have to be content seeing you less. Today's natives tend to be thrifty.

Aries (March 21-April 19): Modesty may be a little hard to practice, flattery hard to resist — much depends on how you manage these now.

Taurus (April 20-May 20): Hold onto ready cash, a better bargain is yet to appear. Daylong diligence pays off and you have achievement to share tonight.

Gemini (May 21-June 20): Attend promptly to all formal and official requirements. Public appearances are likely to assume importance for you.

Cancer (June 21-July 22): Arise and shine, it's a day of grace and pleasing progress, if you but let it happen. Bring along loved ones.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22): Bring out your cash and it flies—for little good, perhaps dissent. Allow an interesting story to go unreported and thereby gain respect.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): A review of your resources and plans is in order — study brings higher skills. Budget both your time and money.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Current arrangements are temporary. Make the most of them. Clear out unneeded items. Create extra space.

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): It seems you've taken on more than you can handle. Stretch yourself a little; give back a little.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Be on your toes to do business. Hobbies become both directly and indirectly profitable, useful in attracting new contacts.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Get away from your regular routine, bring loved ones along to explore interesting places.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Seek a sensible balance between conflicting interests—everybody differs on what should happen next.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20): This is a great day for telling the story just as it is and making arrangements open to general view.

Two single sisters adopt two young Asiatic girls

OWATONNA, Minn. (AP) — Two single sisters in their 50s who have acquired two young girls with Asiatic backgrounds say they'd like to adopt a boy.

The pair are Carola and Adeline Haaland, who retired from the city life in Minneapolis to Pratt, on the outskirts of Owatonna.

They are mothers to Joo Hee Jun, 9, a Korean girl whom they adopted in May, and Sun Sheng Jen, 10, who has been a foster daughter to Haaland's since she was an infant. She is Chinese-American.

Joo Hee, who's now called Julie, could only understand one English word, "headache," when she arrived in a cluster of nine Korean children, three of whom were destined for single-parent homes.

Now, she is tutored by Adeline, an elementary school teacher at Owatonna. Carola is a former nursing instructor who is at home.

Although there isn't a father around, the Haalands' brothers help to provide that image when they visit.

In the United States during 1972, there were an estimated 56,300 motor-vehicle deaths.

An Aug. 4 wedding is planned.

Neither sensible nor cheap—just insensitive

DEAR ABBY: I am a middle-aged woman who is presently dating a man a few years older than I am. He is loaded with money and takes me to all the finest places. He has a fine automobile, dresses expensively and beautifully, and is very good-looking. He sounds perfect, doesn't he? Well, he would be, except for one fault. He HATES to tip. And I mean he absolutely will not tip anyone a dime for anything unless that person has performed a special service other than what he is being paid to do.

For example: We will go to a restaurant and if this gentleman thinks the food is exceptionally good he will send a $5 bill to the COOK. (He says: "Why tip the waiter? He just serves it. The cook deserves the tip.") He will tip a waiter only if the waiter

Dear Abby:
By Abigail Van Buren

gives him extra special service. Doormen get nothing. ("I can open the door myself," he says.) Captains get nothing. ("He's supposed to show us to our table.") Parking attendants get nothing.

This man claims he is not cheap — just sensible. Do you think he's "sensible" or cheap? EMBARRASSED

DEAR EMBARRASSED: Any man who tips the cook for excellence cannot be considered "cheap." (Too few even think of it.) However, he should realize that many people who perform services depend upon their tips for their bread and butter. I know it shouldn't be that way, but, unfortunately, that's the way it is.

DEAR ABBY: I am 5 foot 7 (stocking feet), 20 years old, and am told I have a very beautiful face and figure. My boy friend, who I am beginning to love dearly, is 5 foot 6. David is very handsome, but on the stocky side.

I find that the difference in our height bothers me. I am very uncomfortable when he and I are out together, and I keep hoping we won't run into people we know. When we do, I imagine they are thinking: "My goodness, SHE is taller than HE is!" I realize that a man's height shouldn't be all that important, but I am torn apart worrying about what people think and say about it.

I'm beginning to think it just won't work out between David and me. I'm so afraid if I marry him I will always think maybe I should have waited for a taller man. TORN

DEAR TORN: If the one-inch difference in height is such a serious source of concern to you now, you'd be wise to look for a taller fellow. You say a man's height shouldn't be THAT important, but face it, to you it IS.

DEAR ABBY: Some time ago I foolishly shoplifted a small item from a department store. I was caught, arrested, and prosecuted. Now my name is permanently engraved in the police files. Soon I will be looking for a new job, which brings me to my problem. On every job application is the question: "Do you have a police record?" Or: "Have you ever been arrested?" I am not a criminal, and I feel that I have learned my lesson. I don't want to lie, but I don't want to spoil my chances for getting a job.

Should I say "No" to the question? The item I took was worth less than $5, which the store got back anyway, and for which I paid many times over in many ways. Must I pay for this mistake for the rest of my life? If I say "No," could a prospective employer press charges against me for falsifying an application?

Please help, Abby. Perhaps your answer could help other people in the same predicament. SORRY

DEAR SORRY: Don't compound your problem by adding yet another offense to it. Tell the truth, and accept the consequences.

Problems? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L. A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

LYLE'S WINDOW TALK . . .

Noise is an important factor to remember when planning a window treatment. Street noises can be shut out to a large degree with a heavy sound-absorbent fabric. This is an essential consideration in bedrooms.

LYLE'S feels the actual placement of your windows is crucial to what you do to them. Where they are in the room as a whole, for example, will usually determine the entire room arrangement as well as what you plan to cover them with. A badly placed window, off center in a large room is less of a focal point and more in need of disguise than one centrally placed.

Problems often come up with the relationship of the window to other furnishings as well as to other windows. What furnishings will be placed in front or around it? Is the window too high or too low for these? Is it too large, or too small? There is nothing uncommon about a window wall which is the only place for a sofa, but the window is either much higher than the sofa back or extends way below it!

The where or location of your windows, LYLE'S feels, is crucial in determining what you are going to do to them; study them carefully before you begin, and save yourself from the mistakes you could otherwise make.

Call LYLE'S 454-3105 for draperies, rods, or any window needs you may have.

Teen-agers take class on wear and tear of parenthood

CAMBRIDGE, MASS. (AP) — Parents, if you ever have that nagging feeling your kids don't appreciate you, take heart. There's help in sight.

In an alley off Harvard Square, there's an office full of people who are concerned about the quality of family life in America. They want to improve it.

With about $500,000 in federal funds, they've developed a classroom course for teen-agers on the wear and tear of parenthood.

The place is called the Education Development Center; the course, Education for Parenthood. And in the fall, it will be offered to junior and senior high school students in 200 public school districts in all states except Hawaii and Nevada.

"We're asking young people to take some responsibility for the next generation," said Peter Dow, 40, one of the program's architects.

"Particularly in the post-Sputnik era, we've put a low priority on the needs of children," Dow said. There's been an effort (in the schools) to produce the specialist, to pick out the academically talented and advance them rapidly. There's been relatively little attention given to humanistic goals."

Dow has helped develop a classroom curriculum for 7th through 12th graders who want to explore the world of childhood and learn about the kind of responsibility and responsiveness parenthood involves.

It's a one-year elective course, for credit, that combines classroom instruction with first-hand working experience with children in day care centers, Head Start programs, nursery schools and kindergartens.

The course, which has already been tested in seven schools, has won enthusiastic reviews from teen-agers, teachers and toddlers alike.

"The course is not teaching morals," said Marjorie Jones, principal of the Highland Park Free School in Boston's rundown Roxbury area where the program was tested last year.

"It's teaching the responsibilities of parents. They're learning that an adult has to deal with the needs of a child, that play can be an important learning technique, why patience is important."

Mrs. Jones said the 12 teen-agers — 10 girls and 2 boys — who took the course have a much better understanding of the time and energy children require and new respect for the institution of parenthood.

"Now they see someone their age who has gotten pregnant and say, 'Man, I don't want to do that,'" she said.

As she talked, an eighth grader named Stephanie Moscoll was perched on a chair she had long since outgrown, leading a group of preschoolers through "Simon Says."

In another room cluttered with paints, a doll house, an aquarium and blocks, Charisse DuBois, a sturdy 14-year-old, was helping some 4-year-olds draw pictures of a field trip they had taken.

And Antonia Hamilton, 14, who said she's learned "how children think," was acting out a play with another group of kids.

The program was also tested in Bethesda, Md., a bedroom community for Washington, D.C., where housing developments are going up as fast as they're being torn down in Roxbury.

Bob Najjar, a 17-year-old junior at Walt Whitman High School, said the course has given him a good lesson in the necessity to be fit physically, emotionally and economically before he considers having his own children.

"I'm not going to take a lackadaisical attitude about having kids," said the curly-haired Najjar who has seven brothers and sisters at home. "I know that if I had a child now, I wouldn't be prepared. I understand the responsibilities better. I've learned the importance of educating children. I've learned to have more patience, to be more loving."

Marla Ottenstein, an 18-year-old senior who plans to attend Wheaton College in the fall, shares Bob's enthusiasm for the Bethesda program.

"I used to put kids all in one category," she said. "Now I see them as individuals. I think I have a better idea now of how to help children grow up to be better adults."

The idea for the Parenthood Education Program originated in Washington several years ago when some people at the Department of Health, Education and Welfare began discussing ways to help pregnant school girls who dropped out of school to have children.

Their research turned up supporting statistics:

- That among girls 17 and under, approximately 210,000 gave birth in the United States last year.

- That one in every ten 17-year olds is a mother, and 16 per cent of these girls have at least two children.

- That the divorce rate of those married in their teens is three to four times higher than that of any other age group.

"A lot of professionals are interested in how families are influenced by children less and less," said Fran Ferro, acting associate chief of HEW's Children's Bureau. "Families are becoming smaller. More mothers are entering the work force. We decided there had to be some way to strengthen family life."

In addition to the school parenthood program, another half million dollars has been awarded to six national voluntary youth organizations to promote parenthood education programs in the community.

For example, in Bergen County, N.J., a Boy Scout parenthood education program for 500 young men and women will plan and operate an eight-week summer camp for 250 children.

In Buffalo, N.Y., the Girl Scouts will use a completely equipped mobile van, staffed by a child development specialist, to bring parenthood education information to teen-agers in low- and middle-income urban and rural areas.

"My hope," said one of the program's designers, "is that maybe we can help people to start caring about each other again."

FFA offering chores service in Mondovi area

MONDOVI, Wis. (Special) — The Mondovi Future Farmers of America is offering a chore service to farmers in the Mondovi area. This service is intended to help farmers with their chores during weekend vacations or other short times when they wish to leave home. Farmers interested in this service may call any of the following volunteers:

Dori Altemann, Jeff Ableidinger, Vern Becker, Glenn Berger, Rudy Brantner, Jon Luedtke, Dave Risler, John Schultz, Tim Stanton, and Ron Werleiz. These FFA members will do farm chores at a reasonable rate. They wish to work in pairs if a large amount of chores is assigned to be done.

White merchants are responding with favor to complaints of Indians

WISCONSIN DELLS, Wis. (AP) — White merchants are responding favorably to Indian complaints about the tourist job market in the Wisconsin Dells resort area, Indian spokesmen report.

"We have placed several Indian people in jobs since our meeting on June 11" with Chamber of Commerce representatives, Alberta Day said.

Mrs. Day, a Winnebago, was a leader of an Indian delegation which had accused white merchants of exploiting the Indian image during the summer tourism season without providing compensating employment to the area's Indian minority.

An employment office was to open today for minority job seekers in a 12-week trial under auspices of the state Department of Industry, Labor and Human Relations.

Meetings were planned with white shop owners concerning Indian demands for greater sales of their handicraft and more royalties for the postcard photograph sales for which costumed Indians pose.

"There is a concerted effort being made to employ more, which we feel is most encouraging," Mrs. Day said.

James Brestette of Bayfield, operator of an Indian handicraft sales outlet in Bayfield, added: "This is the first time I know of that an honest effort is being made to clear up some of the Indians' problems. I detect a sincerity on both sides."

Brestette and a lawyer representing Indians had complained June 11 that Dells shopkeepers were selling cut-rate imported trinkets rather than genuine hand-made Indian articles.

Since the protests were registered two weeks ago, a statue of an Indian greeting tourists at a Wisconsin River bridge has been removed. Other advertisements based on Indian lore have been down-played.

Bernie Olson, assistant manager of the Chamber of Commerce, said steps are under way to settle Indian grievances over the compensation they receive for wearing costumes and performing in ceremonial affairs.

Indians are being asked to submit an outline of recommended fees, and "then we can come up with a standard fee schedule," Olson said.

A Dells businessman, Arnold Borchert, said steps were even under way to help Indians enter into shopkeeping and other forms of the community's merchant traffic.

Don Skarda, spokesman for a group which helps operate the Stand Rock ceremonial dance shows, said "we are listening" to Winnebago performers' grievances about dressing-room facilities, fire hazards and sanitation.

Day said there is one job field in which protesters may have been unnecessarily unhappy: the Indian guide business.

White operators of tours and river excursions said they already employ Indians, and would employ more if more Indian youths would apply for work.

Mrs. Day said she regretted "ruffling feathers," adding: "However, how can we prepare more young Indians to qualify as boat guides?"

Another area of grievance had involved what Indians called biased attitudes by law enforcement officials against the Indian minority.

Olson said the chamber is interested in arranging meetings with municipal and county authorities to clarify the situation.

German-Americans are well represented

OSHKOSH, Wis. (AP) — Milwaukee's German-American heritage seems assured of solid representation in this season's Miss America Pageant.

Judy Hieke, 19, who came to America 16 years ago from a village in the Rhine River valley, was declared the winner Saturday of the annual Miss Wisconsin contest.

The Menominee Falls teenager, a music student enrolled at the University of Wisconsin-Milwaukee, is the second consecutive Miss Milwaukee to hold the state title.

She succeeds Linda Marie Henderson, who replaced Terry Ann Meeuwse of DePere as Miss Wisconsin when Miss Meeuwse was named Miss America.

Miss Hieke's father, formerly of Maikammer, West Germany, is a founder of a Germanic American drum and bugle corps.

He has been training his daughter as a musician since she was 8 years old.

She teaches music to about 20 students, and was a talent contest winner during the Oshkosh pageant with a flute solo.

The 5-foot-7, 122-pound, blue-eyed blonde also won a pageant swimsuit contest.

The 1973 Miss Wisconsin runner-up is Miss Racine, Carin Ann Kizewicz, 19, a mathematics student at Waukesha's Carroll College.

Other finalists were Miss Oshkosh, Cynthia Marie Basler, 19, a UW-Oshkosh student; Miss Lake Geneva, Frances Salske, 23, of Whitewater, a UW-La Crosse graduate, and Miss Janesville, Pamela Kay Roberts, 18, of Milton Junction.

Miss Sheboygan, Barbara Ann Stovall, 18, was chosen "miss congeniality."

Holstein calves to be awarded at Mondovi festival

MONDOVI, Wis. (Special) — In addition to the crowning of Miss Mondovi on July 26, at the annual Mondovi Crazy Days event, two purebred Holstein heifer calves will be awarded to the top two essay writers in the Mondovi Future Farmers of America.

The purebred calves will be provided by the 1967 winners, Ray Myren, son of Mr. and Mrs. Palmer Myren, and Michael Kothbauer, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Kothbauer.

Heading the essay writing contest is Don Sobotta, Mondovi FFA ag instructor. The calves were originally given by the Mondovi Businessmen's Association.

A few entries have been received for the annual queen contest. Candidates who would like to enter the contest, but have no sponsor, may do so as a sponsor will be provided.

Contestants interested in entering the contest may call or stop at the Mondovi Herald-News for further information.

Mass transit, taxes dominate assembly

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP) — With a Republican-sponsored proposal to cut the state sales tax one-half per cent on the governor's desk and several mass transportation proposals at the passage stage in the House, the Illinois General Assembly headed today into the final week of the spring session.

The issues of tax relief and mass transportation have dominated the session, which started in January.

Chicago Democrats, saying that they want to fund a regional transportation system in northeastern Illinois adequately from the start, added Saturday a five per cent gas tax levy to a Republican-backed plan for a regional transportation authority.

Sponsor Rep. Gerald Shea, D-Riverside, the House spokesman for Chicago Mayor Richard J. Daley, said the tax would amount to about 1.5 cents on a gallon of gas. It would be imposed only in the six counties in the system.

The amendment was one of 45 considered Saturday in the House, where the proposal by the Illinois Transportation Study Commission was up for consideration.

House Speaker W. Robert Blair, R-Park Forest, says the cost of operating the system would be $160 million a year.

On Gov. Daniel Walker's desk is sales tax cut legislation approved last week, which is a foundation of the Blair-backed proposal.

The measure would provide a one-half cent statewide cut in the sales tax. The authority, as Blair envisions it, would be able to reimpose that amount of sales tax in the counties of Cook, Kane, Lake, DuPage, Will and McHenry, which would be served by the transportation authority.

Other funding mechanisms included in the Blair bills, which are at the passage stage and could be acted upon today when the House reconvenes, include a parking tax levy, a contribution from the city of Chicago and part of the proceeds of a state lottery.

Walker waged a personal campaign to get Democrats to reject the Republican sales tax proposal last week and instead pass a measure to grant an extra $400 per person exemption from the state income tax, a tax savings of $10 per person.

While he was supported in that effort by independent and downstate Democrats, Shea led the Daley bloc in voting for the sales tax cut.

"I intend to vote for the governor's tax relief proposal when it comes up," Shea said, leaving the door open for the Walker proposal, which is also at the passage stage, to be approved in the House.

It is unlikely that the Walker tax relief proposal would emerge from the Senate because Senate President William Harris, R-Pontiac, opposes it and he heads the Republican majority in that chamber.

Boating expenditures for equipment and services in 1972 totaled $3.9 billion, 8 per cent more than 1971.

Astronauts begin reports on flight

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — Convinced that man is "up there to stay," Skylab 1's crew today continues medical examinations and begins 17 days of reporting about its record four-week mission.

Charles Conrad Jr., Dr. Joseph P. Kerwin and Paul J. Weitz flew to the space center Sunday night after meeting earlier in the day with President Nixon and Soviet leader Leonid I. Brezhnev in San Clemente, Calif.

At nearby Ellington Air Force Base, they held their wives in lingering embraces and briefly addressed a group of about 400 persons, mostly space workers.

Mission commander Conrad said he and his crewmates left the orbiting space station in good shape for Skylab 2, a 56-day flight that is to start July 27 under the command of Alan L. Bean.

"I'm glad to turn it over to Capt. Bean and his crew," said Conrad. "As far as I'm concerned, he's got it for 56 days."

Kerwin, the crewman who suffered most from the effects of space weightlessness, shrugged off reports of his dizziness and nausea which occurred after the astronauts returned to earth Friday.

"I read some statements in the paper about my postflight condition," the physician said. "All I can say is that, if this is the worst that space can do, ... we're up there to stay."

Weitz thanked the space workers and said "it's been a team effort all the way."

Engineers and scientists will huddle with Conrad, Kerwin and Weitz daily until July 11, discussing all aspects of the mission, which the astronauts saved with a series of repairs that earned them the title "fix anything guys."

Space agency doctors reported that they see no medical barrier to the eight-week journey of Skylab 2, despite some early postflight dizziness that bothered Conrad, Kerwin and Weitz.

Doctors reported all began readapting quite quickly to earth's gravity after the long exposure to weightlessness.

All three appeared in excellent spirits when they were helicoptered from the Ticonderoga to meet Nixon and Brezhnev at San Clemente.

The astronauts presented Nixon and Brezhnev with mementos of their flight. And Brezhnev told them they were brave men and their flight was a great achievement for science for peaceful purposes.

Conrad informed Brezhnev that Skylab first crossed Russia in daylight and that it was such a beautiful country he would be delighted to visit. Brezhnev immediately invited the three to the Soviet Union. No details or dates were set.

Spring Valley woman named dairy princess

WYKOFF, Minn. — An 18-year-old Spring Valley, Minn., woman donned the crown of 1973 Fillmore County Dairy Princess at ceremonies performed in the Sylvan Park bandstand here Saturday evening.

The ceremonies were a part of the combined June Dairy Days and Wykoff Summer Festival and followed the dairy banquet held at Wykoff Public School.

BEGINNING her year-long reign as dairy princess is Carol J. Merkel, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Merkel. She was sponsored by Rendahl & Highum, Spring Valley.

First runnerup is Cathy Blahnik, 28, daughter of Mrs. Louis Blahnik, Spring Valley, who was sponsored by the Summer Sunbeams 4-H club. Second runnerup is Patricia Krogstad, 17, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Keith Krogstad, Preston, sponsored by Farmers & Merchants State Bank, Preston.

Named Miss Congeniality by the contestants vying for the princess title, was Donna Mae Finseth, 18, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Finseth, Fountain, who was sponsored by Meadow Land Dairy, Preston.

The princess, a 1973 graduate of Spring Valley High School, plans to work for a year, then attend a vocational school.

Other activities during the day included a kiddie parade in the morning, and a grand parade featuring the princess contestants in the afternoon.

ONE OF THE featured events was the county-wide dairy dessert contest. First-place winner was the banana split pie entered by Mrs. Lyle Afeldt, Wykoff. Mrs. Afeldt will compete at the Channel 8, La Crosse, bake-off July 17.

Second-place winner was Mrs. William Mulhern, Fountain, with an orange lemon cloud pie; third place went to Mrs. Vern Schultz, Wykoff, with a coconut date pie, and fourth place to Mrs. Gerald Schoppers, Harmony, for her cherry cheese pie.

Princess Carol and her two attendants will represent Fillmore County at the regional dairy princess contest at Lanesboro Saturday.

Jackson Co. board meeting Tuesday

BLACK RIVER FALLS, Wis. (Special) — The Jackson County Board of Supervisors will meet at 10 a.m. Tuesday for a quarterly session.

Although the program began in 1967 it wasn't fully operational until 1971.

According to MSB tests and state standards, the river near Red Wing is "safe" for swimming but Dr. Susag emphasizes that his division isn't responsible for determining that.

Improvement in river quality acknowledged

RED WING, Minn. — Some improvement in the Mississippi River for swimming in the Red Wing and Lake City areas is acknowledged by local health officers who, however, will not give an unqualified statement that it is safe for swimming.

Dr. George Hawley, Red Wing health officer, describes swimming in the Mississippi here as "low risk."

DR. ROBERT BOWERS, Lake City health inspector, contends the river there "was and still is a sewer" but adds that he still swims in it.

Dr. Bowers says he has never known of anyone becoming seriously ill from swimming in the river there.

The Minnesota Department of Health once took annual tests at the Lake City beach but discontinued them 10 or 12 years ago.

Health inspector for more than 30 years, Dr. Bowers recalls he closed the beach only once, and that was during a polio epidemic.

HE ACKNOWLEDGES that he receives numerous complaints about the river but only when it's green with algae.

He observes, however, that "that's when it's the purest, as far as bacterial count is concerned, because the algae eat bacteria so the more algae, the lower the bacteria will be."

He says his personal observations have been that the river is improving but is not willing to either recommend it or condemn it.

The Metropolitan Sewer Board (MSB) in St. Paul tests water quality monthly at various places along the river and its data indicate the quality of the water has improved greatly since 1970.

MOST SAMPLINGS for the Red Wing area showed the river to be within the "safe" range as far as fecal coliform count is concerned.

Winona health authorities, meanwhile, report that while water quality readings were taken at Lash Beach periodically while it was in operation as a municipal swimming area, these readings were discontinued when the beach was closed several years ago.

Dr. Bowers holds that the outlet at Lake Pepin is the "least contaminated spot along the Mississippi River from the Twin Cities to the Gulf of Mexico."

Dr. Russell Susag, director of water quality control for the MSB, attributes the cleaner water to the chlorination program at the Metropolitan Waste Treatment Sewer plant.

Although the program began in 1967 it wasn't fully operational until 1971.

According to MSB tests and state standards, the river near Red Wing is "safe" for swimming but Dr. Susag emphasizes that his division isn't responsible for determining that.

Hearing is slated on petition for new bank

ROLLINGSTONE, Minn. — A public hearing has been scheduled for 7:30 p.m. Tuesday on a petition by the State Bank of Rollingstone for permission to construct a new bank and parking lot.

The bank is seeking a conditional land use permit for construction of the bank and parking facilities at the northwest corner of the junction of old Highway 248 and the new access road to the new Highway 248 route.

AMA asked to back death right

NEW YORK (AP) — The governing body of the American Medical Association is being asked by its Connecticut delegation to approve a statement by which a person can ask for "the right to die in dignity."

The delegation said the fact that medical technology to prolong life exists does not eliminate the need for "human choices" regarding the use of that technology.

"This is especially true when a patient is irreversibly ill," said the delegation. "The decision to cease employment of artificial means or heroic measures to prolong life of the body belongs to the patient and/or the immediate family with the approval of the family physician."

The discussion of death is included in a resolution presented by the group to the AMA's House of Delegates at organized medicine's 122nd annual convention. The house, faced by a host of measures on medicine and its social and economic impact, will consider the Connecticut resolution this week.

Under the resolution, this statement would be made available to any patient:

"To my family, my physician, my clergyman, my lawyer:

"If the time comes when I can no longer actively take part in decisions for my own future, I wish this statement to stand as the testament of my wishes.

"If there is no reasonable expectations of my recovery from physical or mental and spiritual disability, I request that I be allowed to die and not be kept alive by artificial means or heroic measures. I ask also that drugs be mercifully administered to me for terminal suffering even if in relieving pain they may hasten the moment of death. I value life and the dignity of life, so that I am not asking that my life be directly taken but that my dying not be unreasonably prolonged nor the dignity of life be destroyed.

"This request is made, after careful reflection, while I am in good health and spirits. Although this document is not legally binding, you who care for me will, I hope, feel morally bound to take it into account. I recognize that it places a heavy burden of responsibility upon you, and it is with the intention of sharing this responsibility that this statement is made."

The resolution emphasized that the statement is designed only to provide a means by which patients may express their wishes. It said the form should be considered only as an opportunity and individuals should not be urged to sign it.

Included in the acquisition will be the Arnold Morken site on state highway 44 at the edge of Spring Grove, Minn., with approximately 50 acres; the George Rossin site in the south city limits of Lanesboro on U.S. highway 16, with approximately 75 acres; and the Bud Johnson site, on U.S. highway 16 one mile west of Houston, with about 15 acres.

Negotiations for acquisition will begin within the next few months.

Details of how to remove the cars have not been worked out and may vary from yard to yard, according to highway department officials.

BRF woman hurt in two-car crash

BLACK RIVER FALLS, Wis. (Special) — A rural Black River Falls woman was injured slightly in a two-car crash on Highway 54 about a mile south of here at 5:20 p.m. Friday.

Mrs. JoAnn Selborski, Black River Falls, 2, was treated at Black River Memorial Hospital after her car struck the rear of a car driven by Winston Crutchley, Blair, 1, Wis.

Jackson County authorities said Crutchley had slowed to make a left turn when Mrs. Selborski's car struck his vehicle.

Compact ranch has visual appeal

By ANDY LANG

Crisp and trim, this compact ranch would be a welcome asset to any neighborhood. Stone, brick, wood shakes and siding are combined with ornamented windows and shutters to give the entire structure the kind of "curb appeal" that draws favorable comments.

Even the roofline has been given an interesting touch on the front elevation, as evidenced by a glance at the bedroom wing at the left. Yet the entire rear slope is a single sweep of asphalt shingles, an economic arrangement that does not detract from the interesting character of the facade.

The floor plan of Design R-17 is simply itself, with the shortest route between any two points also being the least disruptive, an important consideration in keeping household chores to a minimum. Architect Lester Cohen has divided the living section of the house into two open areas — formal and informal.

At the front, the living room's expansive front exposure is sheltered by a porch that runs the entire length of the room. At the back of the house, the family area combines with the kitchen for a 26-foot sweep and is open to the rear patio, where there is a built-in barbecue to add to the range of living and entertaining possibilities.

The glass doors leading to the patio give the kitchen and family room excellent light. Work areas in the kitchen are contained in a corner L with the open plan helping to capture the friendliness of the family room section, which has an attractive corner fireplace. Counter and storage areas are efficient as well as pleasing to the eye, a necessity when they are open to view. Appliances are within easy reach, and a double-oven range and dishwasher are worked into the layout.

Off the kitchen is the laundry-mud room, with access to the outside and the basement stairway.

The bedroom wing has three bedrooms and two bathrooms. The master bedroom is at the rear, with a wall of closets and a private bath. The latter has a dressing area that includes a built-in vanity. The two front bedrooms share a second bathroom adjacent to a linen closet.

The architect has suggested a floor plan for the basement to handle "fun" activities. It includes a spacious recreation room, a game room and a hobby room. There's a built-in snack bar in the recreation room, a sink in the hobby room — convenient if the hobby happens to be photography or wood finishing — and a lavatory placed under the main bathrooms.

Coronation to be held at fair in Jackson Co.

BLACK RIVER FALLS, Wis. (Special) — The reigning Miss Jackson County, Miss Donna Johnson, 19, Hixson, will crown her successor during the Aug. 5 grandstand show at the Jackson County Fair here.

Entries are being accepted from contestants who would like to succeed Miss Johnson. Detailed information may be secured from Althor Larson who for many years has chaired the contest. Deadline for entries is July 31.

The contest is open to any girl residing in Jackson County who has been a resident of Jackson County at least six months. She must be 18 years of age by Jan. 1, 1974, and not over 24, of good moral character, and must be available for a few special appearances through the year of her reign.

Contestants will be judged on the basis of appearance, health, personality, poise, wholesomeness and ability to converse as well as photogenic qualities. The winners will be announced and crowned at the county fair. Cash and other prizes will be awarded.

To cover expenses girls will have sponsors but need not have them to enter.

Jaycees open national meet in Minneapolis

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. (AP) — Some 10,000 delegates are expected to attend the 53rd annual national Jaycees convention which opened today in Minneapolis.

Theme of the convention, which runs through Friday, is "The Future Is Now." Forums were scheduled on the future of business, energy and the family.

Lewis Timberlake, a businessman from Austin, Texas, replaced Rep. Gerald R. Ford, R-Mich., as keynote speaker. Ford, House minority leader, canceled his scheduled appearance because he had to be present for an important floor debate, Jaycees officials said.

Timberlake is president of Decision Dynamics, a behavioral science firm in Austin. He also heads an insurance company and several other firms in the Austin area.

Another Michigan congressman, Rep. Guy Vander Jagt, R-Holland, was scheduled to deliver the traditional "inspirational message" at a session Wednesday morning.

All delegates were to participate in the "Parade of States" through downtown Minneapolis Wednesday night.

The Jaycees will elect a new president Thursday from among six candidates.

They include William D. Greene Jr., 31, Oxen Hill, Md.; Stanley Sieron, 31, Belleville, Ill.; James C. Vernon, 32, Corbin, Ky.; Donald M. Courts, 34, Baton Rouge, La.; Richard R. Clayton, 31, Abilene, Texas, and Robert Standish, 33, Armbridge, Pa.

Permit taken for new home

A building permit was taken last week for one new home and another for the foundation only for a house and garage. All other building activity was confined to remodeling, according to applications on file in the office of George Rogge, city building inspector.

Alphonse Bambenek is building a 54-by-46-foot, split-entry, wood-frame home with attached garage at 514 Wall St. The structure will be heated by gas and cost estimate is $23,000. Schabacker Brothers is the contractor.

HAGGEN HOMES, 1204 Gilmore Ave., drew a permit to put in foundations for a 28-by-44-foot house and a 22-foot by 24-foot garage at 1124 Gilmore Ave., at a listed cost of $3,169.

Public works construction is progressing

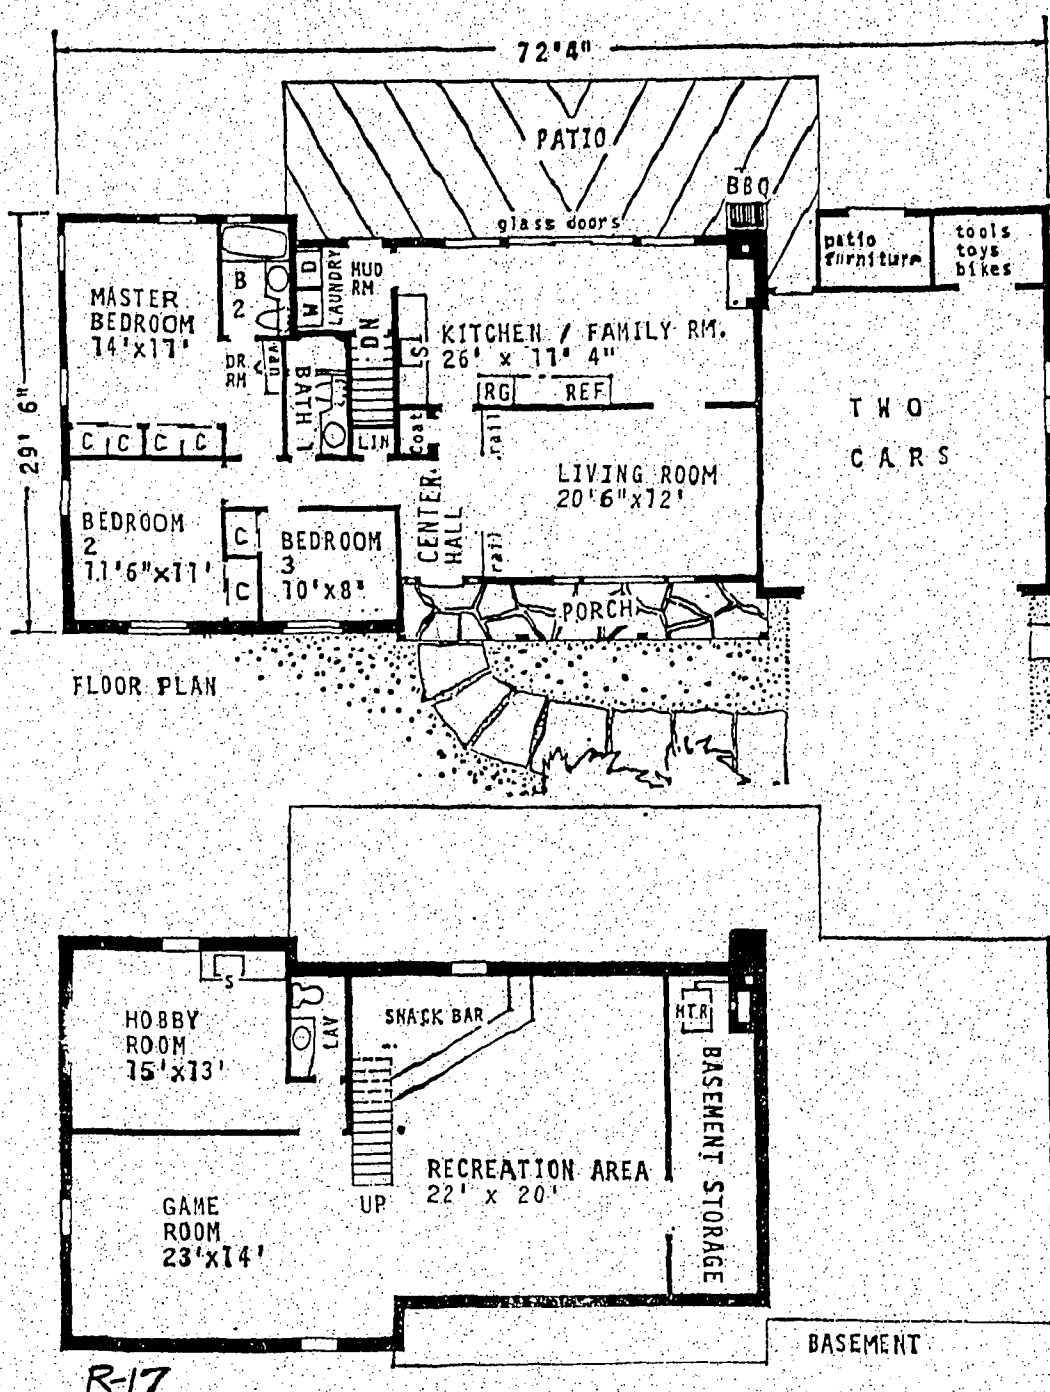

BLACK RIVER FALLS, Wis. (Special) — Construction on two major projects in Black River Falls is progressing.

The Ellis Stone Construction Co., Stevens Point, has the general contract for an addition to the Jackson County Home and the John Cox Construction Co., Tomah, has the contract for the addition to the Jackson County Highway Department shop in downtown Black River Falls.

Total of the contracts let May 15 for the Jackson Home addition amounts to $59,518.72. By starting construction prior to July 1, additional savings will be achieved by the county for this project, which will add a 50-bed wing and a central core utility system to the Jackson Home complex. Upon completion, the original home building will no longer be used.

In April the county board allocated $100,000 in federal revenue sharing money to the county highway shop.

Also under construction here are building and renovation projects at the county fairgrounds in Black River Falls. The old pavilion building has been turned over to the Jaycees for a beer and bratwurst stand on a percentage basis and the building is to be remodeled. That will include tearing down the old beer stand adjacent to it.

FLOOR PLANS: Basic fundamentals of a good circulation pattern have been followed in this floor arrangement, the objective being to make maximum use of all space within modest dimensions.

34,442 watch Brewers romp, —Ellis sulks

By MIKE O'BRIEN
MILWAUKEE (AP)—Cleveland catcher John Ellis, a central figure in a fifth-inning melee which emptied both benches and bullpens Sunday, doesn't like being embarrassed at any time.

But Ellis especially doesn't like being embarrassed by the Milwaukee Brewers, a team he doesn't exactly rank among the greatest in baseball history.

Ellis charged Brewer Manager Del Crandall had deliberately tried to run up the score and embarrass the Indians in the Brewers' 8-2 romp, which followed a 12-3 rout of the Indians Saturday night.

"It's nice to see all the tough guys when they're winning," Ellis said. "They must have a lot of real tough guys over there in (the Brewer clubhouse) now."

The melee occurred in the fifth inning, just after the Brewers had scored four runs on a two-run double by Darrell Porter and two-run single by Tim Johnson. That raised the score to 7-1 and evoked pandemonium in the Old Timers Day crowd of 34,442.

Moments later, Coluccio advanced from second to third on a wild pitch, then broke for the plate as Ellis' throw to third eluded the Indians' Buddy Bell. However, Bell recovered and threw to Ellis, who tagged Coluccio for the out.

When Coluccio objected to the force of the tag, the two exchanged heated words. When they started for one another, Milwaukee third baseman Don Money jumped between them. He and Ellis wrestled each other to the ground as players and coaches streamed to the scene near home plate. The pushing and shoving quickly subsided, and Coluccio and Ellis were ejected.

Money and Coluccio said later they were unaware of any punches having been thrown by anyone. Ellis said the same thing at first, but later admitted he had thrown a couple.

"I know I hit a couple of guys," he said. "Six of them had me. I didn't get hit, but I got kicked a couple of times."

Then Ellis let on what was bothering him.

"It's kind of embarrassing, you know," he said. "They have an 8-2 lead and Crandall has everybody running, trying to show us up and embarrass us. It was the same thing last night when they beat us bad."

Ellis said the second place Brewers, who ran their latest winning streak to three games, have been "playing over their heads."

They'll be next to us when it's all over, wherever we finish," said Ellis whose team is a distant last in the American League East.

"Now, they have some good players, but certainly they're not that good," Ellis said. "I'm not even good enough to be able to say this, really, but I'm a professional and I know."

Astros sweep Giants

McMullen provides LA with five-game spread

By HAL BOCK
Associated Press Sports Writer
In case you were wondering, Ken McMullen still works for the Los Angeles Dodgers. And if you don't believe it, just ask the Cincinnati Reds.

McMullen, all but totally absent from the Los Angeles scene this season, appeared out of the deep recesses of the Dodger dugout and destroyed the Reds during the weekend.

The veteran third baseman ripped his second homer in as many days Sunday and drove in three runs in Los Angeles' 5-2 victory over Cincinnati.

McMullen's hot weekend helped Los Angeles open a five-game bulge over San Francisco in the NL West. Steve Garvey also homered for the Dodgers and Al Downing won his sixth game in nine decisions.

Elsewhere in the National League Sunday, Houston swept a doubleheader from San Francisco, 7-6 and 8-3, Philadelphia edged Montreal 5-4, New York defeated Pittsburgh 5-2, Chicago shut out St. Louis 2-0 and Atlanta beat San Diego 6-1.

Doug Radar's bases-loaded single in the ninth inning drove in Houston's winning run in the first game against the Giants and then the Astro third baseman contributed a homer and a two-run double to the nightcap victory.

Cesar Cedena tagged a grand slam in the first game but the Giants wiped out a six-run Houston lead on a pair of three-run homers by Bobby Bonds and Willie McCovey before Radar's infield single decided the issue.

In the second game, the Astros snapped a 1-1 tie with two runs in the seventh and then Radar homered in the eighth and added two more RBIs with a double in the four-run ninth. Philadelphia got solo homers from Tommy Hutton, Bob Boone and Cesar Tovar to defeat Montreal. The Expos made it close on Ken Singleton's three-run homer in the eighth but Billy Wilson saved the victory for Jim Lonborg.

Atlanta's hitters couldn't do much about San Diego's Steve Arlin, managing just one hit off the pitching dentist for seven innings. But Arlin got in trouble with a couple of walks in the eighth and Ralph Garr tagged him for a grand slam home run that helped the Braves beat the Padres.

Arlin was leading 1-0 before Garr's shot turned the game around for Atlanta.

Glenn Beckert's two-run pinch single broke up a scoreless tie and moved the Chicago Cubs past St. Louis. Milt Pappas throttled the Cardinals on just five hits. The Cubs managed just two against Tom Murphy until their winning rally in the eighth.

Ed Kranepool drove in three runs with a pair of doubles and Tom Seaver pitched New York to its victory over Pittsburgh.

The Pirates' only runs came on Willie Stargelt's 22nd home run of the season in the first inning.

Brawls highlight AL games, Yankees roll

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
Associated Press Sports Writer
There's some had feeling between the Cleveland Indians and Milwaukee Brewers and the Kansas City Royals and Texas Rangers, but for feeling had how about the plight of the Detroit Tigers?

The Indians and Brewers, Royals and Rangers added some extra-curricular fistcuffs to their scheduled baseball activities Sunday while the only thing the Tigers added was two more losses, their sixth and seventh in a row.

When the swinging and shouting were done, the red-hot New York Yankees had won a doubleheader from the Tigers 2-2 and 2-1, the Brewers had out-slugged the Indians 8-3, the Royals had whipped the Rangers twice 7-4 and 10-6, the Orioles had dropped a 1-0 squeaker to the Boston Red Sox, the Angels had defeated the Twins 3-0 after dropping the opener 5-1 and the Chicago White Sox recovered from a 7-0 drubbing by the Oakland A's to take the nightcap 11-1.

In Kansas City, Ed Kirkpatrick of the Royals was ejected from the second game after engaging in a brief fight with Texas pitcher Lloyd Allen. Kirkpatrick went from first to third on Lou Piniella's two-run single in the first inning and tried to score when Piniella was trapped rounding first. Allen covered home plate in the ensuing rundown and when he tagged Kirkpatrick, the KC player swung at him and they exchanged punches with both benches emptying.

Cookie Rojas drove in the winning run in the opener as no-hit Steve Busby notched his first win since May 4. Rookie Frank White singled home the winner in the nightcap as the Royals moved into first place in the West Division by one game over Chicago and Oakland and 1½ over Minnesota and California.

Graig Nettles drilled a home run off Detroit ace Mickey Lolich in the ninth inning, giving the Yankees a doubleheader sweep after Gene Michael's tie-breaking single in the seventh inning won the the opener before a Ball Day crowd of 62,107 in New York.

The sweep stretched the first-place Yankees' winning streak to eight games, their longest since 1969, and gave them a two-game edge over Milwaukee in the AL East. The Tigers, who were in first place as recently as June 14, are fifth and trail by seven games.

NAILED AT THE PLATE . . . The upturned fist of the homeplate umpire leaves little doubt as to the fate of Twins' outfielder Bob Darwin as he attempted to slide past California Angel catcher Jeff Torborg in the second game of Sunday's doubleheader in Bloomington, Minn. Darwin, center, tried to score from second base on a single by Tony Oliva. The Twins and the Angels split, with the home towners winning the first game 5-1 and losing the nightcap 3-0. (AP Photofax)

Twins win opener 5-1

Wright's diligence pays off for Angels

By PAT THOMPSON
BLOOMINGTON, Minn. (AP)—Clyde Wright feels you won't impress the boss if you leave long before quitting time.

The California Angels' left-hander, pitching the second game of Sunday's doubleheader against the Minnesota Twins, was expected to go only the first five innings.

But Wright went 8 2-3 innings before Steve Barber came in from the bullpen to strike out George Mitterwald for the final out with two men on to save Wright's 3-0 victory and give the Angels a split.

The Twins won the opener 5-1 on Dick Woodson's seven-hitter and ninth-inning relief help from Ray Corbin.

"I heard the manager said something about going five innings," said Wright. "But you can't quit work in the middle of the day."

It's not that the Twins, who remained in a virtual tie with the Angels in fourth place in the American League-West only 1½ games behind leading Kansas City, quit early.

Dave Goltz and Corbin combined to shut out the Angels on three hits for 8 2-3 innings.

But Bill Grabarkewitz walked with two outs, Rudy Meoli reached first when Rod Carew mishandled his grounder and Tom McCraw walked.

Angel Manager Bobby Winkles, whose pinch hitting corps is batting better than .300, sent Winston Lenas to bat for lead-off man Sandy Alomar. Lenas delivered a two-run single and Vada Pinson singled in the third unearned run of the inning.

Wright got the first two men in the Twins' ninth, then Mike Adams and Steve Braun hit back-to-back singles. Winkles went to Barber, who threw only three pitches in fanning Mitterwald.

Crampton boosts yearly earnings up to $204,209

By BOB GREEN

AKRON, Ohio (AP)—Bruce Crampton is looking for a million dollars. It's just a matter of time before the Australian veteran happily embraces that magic figure in career earnings.

"I think I can safely expect to go past the million this year," Crampton chuckled after winning the $2,000 first prize Sunday in the American Golf Classic.

His scrambling 68 in the final round—he missed seven greens and saved par on five of them—nailed down his fourth victory of the season and pushed his earnings for the year to $204,209.

The 37-year-old veteran of 17 years on the American pro tour became the first foreigner ever to go past $200,000 in a single season and he vaulted past Jack Nicklaus into the No. 1 spot on the season's money list.

Further, he pushed his career earnings to $995,652, just $4,348 short of joining Nicklaus, Arnold Palmer, Billy Casper and Lee Trevino as the game's only $1 million winners.

"It's a tremendous feeling," said Crampton, who was flanked by wife Joan and son Jay. "The money and the titles are important of course, but there's a tremendous feeling of personal satisfaction to know that I have competed so successfully over here."

Crampton won by three strokes with a 273 total, seven under par on the 7,180 yard Firestone Country Club course.

Veteran Gay Brewer, Lanny Wadkins and Bob Murphy were next at 276. Murphy closed up with a 67, Wadkins had a 69 and Brewer 71.

Tom Weiskopf and Forrest Fezler, the 23-year-old tour sophomore who had led through the first three rounds, were next at 277. Weiskopf had a 73 and Fezler took a 75.

Nicklaus and Arnold Palmer were in a group at 280, seven strokes back.

Allen and put on a tag of his own. Before the dust cleared everyone got into the act. Kirkpatrick was not only out at the plate but was tossed out of the game. The Royals went on to sweep the doubleheader with 7-4 and 10-6 wins. (AP Photofax)

Merchants, Lazy River prosper during weekend

It was a prosperous weekend for local teams in amateur baseball action as the Winona Merchants and the Lazy River Salmon of Fountain City, Wis., won five games between them.

The Merchants boosted their record from 3-5 to 7-5 with a pair of victories on Saturday and two more on Sunday. Saturday the defending Region 19B champions swept a twin bill with Minneapolis Lakonias at Gabrych Park, winning the opener 5-4 and taking the nightcap 8-2.

Sunday the Merchants trounced Onalaska 17-6 in a Tri-State League tilt to remain just a half-game ahead of Peplin in the loop standings, and later in the day they pinned a 5-3 setback on Coon Valley, Wis.

Lazy River scored seven runs in the fourth after the visitors had gone in front 4-1 in the top of the inning. Bruce LeVasseur started things off with a single but was forced off by Jim Ronnenberg. Dwight Koehler drew a walk, Steve Gilbertson reached on an error and then Ed Sack came through with a two-run double.

Dave Rendahl walked to fill the sacks again, and Bob Lee gave the host team the lead to stay with another double. A free pass to Paul Sleever set the stage for Case's big blow.

MIKE CASE

Mike Case went the distance for the winners allowing just seven hits and striking out ten. The stocky right-hander helped his own cause by belting a bases-loaded double in the bottom of the fourth inning. Three runs scored on the hit, but Case was cut down trying to stretch it into a triple.

Packers schedule special camp for receivers in July

GREEN BAY, Wis. (AP) — The Green Bay Packers' special camp for receivers, originally scheduled May 12-13 but postponed because rain had made field conditions unusable, will precede the regular training camp next month.

The Packers said Friday 29 passers and receivers are to report for physicals Sunday, July 8, and undergo two workouts the following day.

Rookies and some designated veterans are to report Tuesday night, July 10, for physicals and undergo running tests Wednesday. Formal two-a-day workouts for rookies will begin Thursday.

The rest of the veterans are to check in Saturday evening. Two-a-day workouts for the entire 86 man squad are scheduled to begin Monday, July 16.

The National Football League club's roster includes 47 veterans and 39 rookies.

Voelker turned in rounds of 35 and 40 over the Westfield course to finish one shot up on John Grohowski.

Len Bernatz grabbed the third spot with a 78, just one better than Tom Mason. Louis Klage's 80 was good enough for fifth place, while Jerry Van Hoof shot an 81 and Bob Mazek shared seventh place with Ken Poblocki with an 82.

All 97 contestants took to the course Sunday with Joe Poblocki, Denny Robiecki and Carl Klage sharing the first flight lead with identical rounds of 83.

A similar situation turned up in the second flight where Jerry Fakler, Frank Cichanowski, Ervin Schewe and Rodney Klage all fired 88s.

Ray Bambenek copped the third flight title with a 94, one shot better than both Roy Kuhlman and Bill Armstrong.

Lyle Jacobson and Bob Gora shared the fourth flight lead with rounds of 97.

The fifth flight crown was also split four ways with Ray Weilandt, Dick Prosser, Gene Scheuler and Leo Olson carding scores of 104.

Butch Walz's 109 topped the sixth flight, while Lambert Hamerski's 116 was the best in the seventh flight and Al Walby's 125 topped the eighth flight.

two wild pitches and stole home for Lazy River's first run in the bottom of the first inning.

The Merchants unleashed an 18-hit assault against Onalaska Sunday that included six home runs, two each by Loren Benz and Steve Krinke and one each by Mike Semling and Doug Sauer.

Benz and Mike Schultz both had three hits in the game while Sauer, Krinke and Denny Barron contributed two apiece. Fred Beck started on the mound for the Winona team, but lefty Gary Bauer came on in the fifth inning to record his second victory in two days.

PAT WILTGEN went the route against Coon Valley to earn his third victory in four decisions. He was touched for eight hits and struck out five. Sauer was 3-for-5 at the plate including a triple and drove in three runs while Benz went 2-for-5 and drove in the Merchants' other two runs.

Mike Semling collected three hits in five at bats against Coon Valley after facing two triples and a single in eight trips in Saturday's doubleheader with Lakonias. Benz also had three hits in the twin bill including a double and a homer, and Schultz was 3-for-4.

The Lakonias batters saw nothing but left-handers as Steve Krinke pitched the first game and Bauer the second.

Peplin stayed atop the standings with a 3-0 victory over New Albin, Iowa, Sunday. Sam Shea, a native of La Crescent, tossed the shutout for the winners, giving up just four hits and striking out nine.

PEPIN SCORED two unearned runs in the third inning after New Albin second baseman Don Imhoff dropped a pop up with two outs. Jason Peters accounted for the other run with a solo homer in the sixth. Peplin will meet Lazy River in a Tri-State tilt this Sunday in Gabrych Park beginning at 2:15 p.m.

Winnipeg Jets hint at moving

KENOSHA, Wis. (AP) — The Winnipeg Jets franchise of the World Hockey Association "isn't secure" and could be moving to either Milwaukee or Detroit, player-coach Bobby Hull said Sunday.

"There is talk the Winnipeg franchise will be moving," he said while here to help break ground for a privately financed hockey rink. "Milwaukee is looking for a franchise, and rumor is there's a Detroit group interested, too. So, it could boil down to Milwaukee or Detroit."

Winnipeg posted a 43-31-4 record in the WHA last season, bowing to the New England Whalers in the final playoffs.

"It's a real nice city," Hull said of the team's current home, "but as far as supporting a professional team, I really think they leave something to be desired."

A move to Milwaukee would give the team a rivalry with the Chicago Cougars of the WHA, while a switch to Detroit would result in a battle for fans with the Detroit Red Wings of the National Hockey League.

HARD CORE GRIDDERS — With the summer just three days old these ardent football players took to the gridiron in Lubbeck, Texas, for the Coaches All American game Saturday night kicking off the upcoming season. In fourth quarter action, linebacker

Late Austin rally foils LeJetz, 5-4

AUSTIN, Minn. — The Winona LeJetz dropped their First District American Legion League opener here Saturday 5-4 after grabbing an early lead.

The LeJetz took a 4-2 lead into the seventh and final inning only to have Austin come back with three in its half of the frame to pull out the win.

Austin's leadoff hitter slammed a double to get the inning started but was cut down at third base trying to stretch his luck. With that play Winona's luck ran out.

THE NEXT man up rapped a single off the leg of losing pitcher Greg Zaborowski and a walk that followed put runners on first and second with one out.

A looping flyball fell in to load the bases and set the stage for Austin's clincher.

Another long fly eluded the Winona outfield and two runs raced across the plate. That spelled the end of Zaborowski's mound stint as he gave way to Mike Smith.

Smith came on to get what could have been the second out, but turned into the winning run. An infield ground ball was turned into a close play at the plate as Austin gambled or putting across the winning run. In the collision at home, the ball was jostled out of catcher John Mueller's glove and the runner was safe.

The loss dropped the LeJetz record to 1-2 on the season.

Winona will see action at home three times this week as it hosts Westby at 7:30 p.m. tonight, then takes on La Crescent here Tuesday and in La Crescent Thursday before playing host to Albert Lea in a twin bill Saturday.

In Saturday's action in Austin, LeJetz manager Denny Woychik made his coaching debut as he stepped in for Coach Terry Biech.

Brechl will be back at the helm tonight and returning with him will be Greg Scarborough who was ejected from Saturday's contest after a fight with Austin pitcher Chris Todd in the fourth inning.

said, "So is (Pedro) Garcia. They're the ones who have been hurting us the most. Pretty soon they'll find out the ship's going to sink."

Coluccio said, "All I know is I got kicked out and I didn't get any punches in."

"He tagged me hard, up around my face and on purpose," Coluccio said. "Then he asked me what I was going to do about it and I told him. He said some obscenities to me and I threw some back at him."

"Then Money got in between and Walt Williams grabbed me, and I didn't get a chance to get in on it," he said. "I didn't get any punches in and I don't think anyone else did, either."

Ellis admitted he tagged Coluccio "kind of hard."

"I tag everybody hard," he said. "If he can't take it, I feel sorry for him. Then he told me my wife is ugly. Well, he didn't tell me that. But what he did you couldn't print."

After order was restored, Garcia, the next batter, walked. But when Ray Lamb's pitch for the fourth ball sailed close to Garcia's head, he started to walk toward the mound. Again several players rushed on the field, but there were no further incidents.

The Brewers took a 2-1 lead in the second as Porter singled in a run and came around on a single by Johnson and a double by Garcia.

The Indians chased Milwaukee starter Bill Parsons by loading the bases with two out in the first. Reliever Chris Short yielded a run scoring infield hit to John Lowenstein, then blanked the Indians until he tired with one out in the eighth.

"One reason I got tired is we had so many long innings," said Short (3-1). "I usually only throw three warmup pitches before an inning, but today I had to throw eight or 10 just to loosen up again. But I'll take those long innings."

Short received a standing ovation when he left the game.

Linderbaum fires perfect game in Eau Claire tourney

EAU CLAIRE, Wis. — Winona's Sunshine Bar added four wins and two losses to its season record here this weekend as it reached the semi-finals of the losers bracket of the seventh annual Eau Claire Classic Softball Tournament.

The highlight of the weekend for Winona entrants was Denny Linderbaum's perfect game. The right-hander chalked up his third win of the tournament with a 2-0 win over Pogy's Pizza, La Crosse, Wis., after tripping Klein's, Madison, Wis., 3-2 earlier.

Gene Schultz went 3-for-3 to give Linderbaum the required offensive assists while the 6-6 hurler struck out five and was backed up by flawless defense.

Linderbaum opened the tourney with a 1-0 win over Hanson Tire, Madison. Don Hazelton came up with the big hit in the opener, slapping a triple and scoring the winning run. Carl Aegler pitched a 3-2 win over Rockford, Ill., later in the day.

The Winona's only losses came at the hands of Kelly's, Milwaukee, Wis., 5-0, and to Austin Moose, 4-0.

Kelly's went on to meet Eau Claire's Shamrocks in the tourney finale after the 22-team field had been trimmed. The Shamrocks managed to capture the crown in the double-elimination tourney, but not before Kelly's won their first meeting 3-2. The Shamrock's came on to win the clincher 5-2.

Lang's Bar of Winona had a shorter stay, falling twice to teams from Wisconsin's capital city. In a pair of shutouts, Lang's fell to Pool's 1-0, and Hanson Tire 5-0.

SCHOOL FOR GAL PROS ATLANTA (AP) — The Ladies Professional Golf Association plans to set up a qualifying school for new players seeking to tour in 1973.

One rule is that a gal golfer to qualify for the tour must average 78 strokes or better for 18 holes during 54 holes of play.

Interested lady golfers should write the LPGA, 1776 Peachtree St., N.W., Atlanta, Ga. 30309.

Stock market retreats as Dean testifies

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market retreated steadily today as Wall Street awaited developments in the Watergate testimony of John W. Dean III.

The noon Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks was down 8.43 at 871.39. Declining issues swamped those advancing 866 to 95 in relatively light trading on the New York Stock Exchange.

Analysts said the testimony of Dean, the fired White House counsel, was simply one of several uncertainty variables that added up to a minus for investors.

McDonald's Corp., down 3 1/2 at 53 1/2, was the Big Board's most active stock. Analysts traced at least some of the selling pressure in the issue of fears among some investors that low gasoline supplies would cut into the fast food chain's sales.

At the American Stock Exchange, the noon price-change index was .09 lower at 22.25.

The most active issue on the Amex was TWA warrants, up 1/2 at 5.

A boat accident figured in a Wisconsin drowning during the weekend.

The body of Glenn A. Wotlie, 30, of East Troy was recovered Sunday from Beulah Lake in Walworth County where his motorboat had struck a swimming raft late Saturday.

The body of Lawrence Morren, 14, was recovered Sunday from a pond in which he had been swimming Saturday near his Tomahawk home.

Expect strong foreign bid for U.S. grain

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

North Dakota and Minnesota congressmen held foreign demand for U.S. grain will remain strong.

Rep. Mark Andrews, R-N.D., said foreign wheat sales were expanding in Russia because of drought conditions. He also noted China and Japan are becoming more consumer-oriented and already have ordered advance grain supplies.

Rep. Bob Berglund, D-Minn., said he agreed. Berglund said the Soviet Union market will increase because it is in need of feed grains and protein in the form of sunflowers and soybeans.

The Minnesota congressman said India has had a prolonged drought so grain outlets will open there and the reduction in European variable levy will result in increased exports.

Andrews said foreign sales are up on some commodities at the present time. Wheat and soybeans were selling in Europe at twice parity because of the protein shortage in feeding poultry and livestock.

If the government tries to attach export controls, it will be a tragic event which will undo the work of the past 20 years, Andrews said.

Minneapolis air control center being honored

FARMINGTON, Minn. (AP) — The Minneapolis Area Air Route Traffic Control Center, which helps calls the shots on aircraft landings and takeoffs in nine states, is being honored today as "most outstanding in the nation."

Raymond G. Belanger, acting director of the Federal Aviation Agency (FAA) Air Traffic Service in Washington, D.C., was to present the Facility of the Year plaque to the center in ceremonies at the center in Farmington.

Lyle K. Brown, FFA's Great Lakes Regional Director, said the center was cited for productive increases in both aircraft handled and the number of instrument approaches.

Gov. Wendell Anderson had proclaimed it Air Traffic Controller Day in honor of the center's achievement.

Farmington provides separation of en route aircraft as well as approach control service for 90 airports within its jurisdiction. The area includes Minnesota and parts of Wisconsin, North Dakota, South Dakota, Iowa, Michigan, Missouri, Nebraska and Kansas.

State work force rises 21,500 from April to May

ST. PAUL, Minn. (AP) — Minnesota's work force rose by 21,500 from April to May, reaching 1,743,900.

The state Department of Manpower Services (DMS) adding that there were 80,900 on the jobless rolls in May compared with 86,200 in April and 100,000 in May 1972.

DMS said Saturday the state's jobless rate rose from 4.4 per cent in April to 4.6 per cent in May compared with a national rate of 5 per cent. In May 1972, the Minnesota rate was 5.9 per cent.

The April-May work force hike reflected, among other categories, 6,500 more in construction jobs; 3,800 in trade employment and 3,000 in service industries.

Production workers received $1.17 an hour for an average 40.3 hour week, or $168.05 in salary per week. In May 1972, said DMS, they received $1.01 an hour and $160.40 a week for an average of 40 hours' work.
